BIG ISSUES HANG FIRE

Postpone Real Struggle While They Discuss Korean Question.

THE YELLOW PERIL

It Is Raised by M. Witte Against Japanese Occupation of Hermit Kingdom.

OUTSIDE INFLUENCE AT WORK

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 13.—No progress has been made with the peace negotiations over Sunday. They stand exactly where they did last night. The session of the plenipotentiaries which was to have been held this afternoon was postponed by mutual agreement out of reverence to the Sabbath, which is universally observed in Russia as a day of rest.

It would, perhaps, not be too much to say the general feeling is more hopeful, in spite of open predictions made by personages connected with both sides of the negotiations, that before next Sunday the plenipotentiaries will reach an impasse where a rupture will become inevitable. This pessimistic view is based upon the fact that, so far as known, the two big barriers to an agreement—indemnity and Sakhalin—remain as high and insurmountable as ever.

The real struggle is only postponed. The main problems are no nearer solution than when the plenipotentiaries met. The principal reason for optimism lies in the fact that, confronted with the absolute refusal of the Russian reply to admit the discussion of either indemnity or the cession of the island of Sakhalin, the Japanese proposed to take up the consideration of the conditions seriatim. From this it is assumed the Japanese are prepared to yield, or have reason to believe a way will be found to overcome the objections of their adversaries when the crucial test comes.

A Possible Way Out.

An intimation comes from a high source that very strong outside influences are at work on both sides, and that for the moment the effort is to gain time. The plan of having Russia practically satisfy Japan's claim of reimbursement for the cost of the war by the purchase of the Japanese military evacuation of Sakhalin continues to be advanced. Such a solution would permit Russia to say she had paid neither indemnity nor ceded a foot of territory.

The debate in yesterday's conference over the first condition—the recognition of Japan's "preponderating influence" over Korea, involving her right to control the administration of the hermit kingdom, use the littoral for strategic purposes, etc.—was of a remarkable character. Indeed, the position taken by M. Witte was sensational in the extreme. His attitude reveals plainly the Russian tactics. They propose to raise before the world the specter of the "yellow peril." Russia claims Japan's present purpose is to get a foothold on the Asiatic continent from which to extend her influence and dominion.

M. Witte made no objection, but he declared the words "preponderating influence" did not adequately describe what Japan proposed to do, and he insisted the language used should show Japan's true purpose, which, he contended, was to make a Japanese province of Korea. His argument might be summarized as follows:

Japan Must Speak Out.

Russia has no objection to Japan taking Korea, but you must avow it plainly. If it is to be taken, it should be taken officially, so the world will understand your purpose to take possession of the persons of the entire administration of the kingdom, from the emperor down to the smallest of the people. Korea will have no representative abroad who can explain the situation from the standpoint of the Koreans. All of which means Korea is to belong to Japan.

So be it. Russia will not object, but Japan should avow a purpose, which is against the interests of Europe and America, especially against the interests of the United States, China and even your ally, England. If this is satisfactory to Europe and America, Russia raises no protest. You propose to destroy every vestige of the sovereignty of the emperor of Korea, but you desire to employ a formula which will conceal your true purpose. The country

TWELVE PASSENGERS ARE KILLED AND TWENTY-FIVE HURT IN A COLLISION ON THE NICKEL PLATE RAILROAD IN OHIO

MOST OF VICTIMS WERE IN SMOKER

Rescuers Have Hard Work Getting Dead and Dying from the Broken Cars.

FOREIGNERS IN WILD PANIC

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 13.—A fast eastbound passenger train on the Nickel Plate road collided with a westbound freight train early today at Rochman, O., near Vermilion, resulting in the death of 12 persons, while at least 25 others were injured, eight of whom will probably die. The wreck, according to the officials of the company, was caused by a misunderstanding of orders, or neglect to obey them, on the part of the crew of the freight train.

THE DEAD:

CHARLES W. POOLE, engineer of passenger train, 50 years old, Conneaut, O.

JOSEPH ALEXANDER, 24 years old, Newark, N. J.

FRANK WEAVER, 35 years old, Findlay, O.

DOMENICO POMODORO, Italian, 30 years old, laborer.

ANTONIO GRILLO, 25 years old, Italian laborer.

JOSEPH PARACI, 38 years old, laborer.

FRANK BUSCINI, 28 years old, laborer.

FRANCISCO SCILLA, 26 years old, laborer.

NATALE DIRMORA, 32 years old, laborer.

ANTONIO ACHILLE, 24 years old, laborer.

GALAGUS TRAVOLA, 24 years old, laborer.

CALOGNO CAGLIANI, 22 years old, laborer, hurled through car window; died in Lorain hospital as the result of his injuries.

THE INJURED:

JOHN W. LONG, 31 Napier street, Cleveland; right leg broken.

RICHARD A. LONG, son of J. W. Long, right leg amputated, hip out, head and body contused; may die.

LOUIS REINHOLT, Berea, O., compound fracture left leg, foot crushed and body bruised.

E. E. O'HARA, 215 Miller street, Findlay, O.; right leg amputated.

JOHN W. MURPHY, West Haven, Conn.; right foot broken and body lacerated.

PHILIP BACKIM, Tiffin, O.; back sprained.

JOHN JAFA, LEONARDO SIRACUSA, CHARLES RUCCUFUSU, VIGNA LEONARDO, CHARLES DUMONT, JOSEPH DUMONT, TONY TREVALLE, CHARLES DEGAR, ALBERT JAMA, FRANK GALLIA, and TONY VERANCA.

Killed at His Post.

Aside from the engineer, the men killed on the passenger train were all riding in the smoking car, at the head of the train, and were mostly laborers in the employ of the Standard Oil Company, on their way from Fort Seneca, Ohio, to Bowling Green, Ohio, in charge of a foreman. The engineer C. C. Poole of the passenger train was killed at his post while trying to reach for the airbrake after seeing the headlight of the freight train. His fireman, Haefner, saved himself by jumping.

The high speed of the passenger train threw its locomotive and first three coaches over on the engine of the freight train, telescoping the smoker and car following. The forward cars of the freight train were splintered to fragments.

Of the passengers in the smoker none escaped injury. Fortunately there was no fire, but the heavy timbers of the wrecked cars pinned down many and prevented them from getting out until assistance arrived.

As soon as possible after the wreck occurred, doctors were sent on a special train to the scene from Lorain. The injured were hurried to Lorain and placed in the hospital there. The dead were conveyed to the morgue at Lorain, awaiting identification and disposition.

Sleepers Withstood Shock.

When the trains came together almost everybody in the smoker was dozing. The sudden jar hurled them out of their seats into the aisle and threw several persons to the roof and sides of the car, which seemed all at once to crunch in like a paper bag, pinning down each passenger in the position in which he had been caught.

The passengers in the second car escaped more easily, as there the violence of the impact was not so severe, although few got off without cuts, bruises, sprains or broken bones. The two rear cars were sleepers, and they withstood the shock without suffering serious harm. No passengers in the sleepers were injured.

The men on the train who escaped injury worked as well as they could without tools to save life and limb, and the residents in the sparsely settled vicinity soon arrived to help. The sleepers were used for the accommodation of some of the injured, as were several houses near the siding. The officials of the Nickel Plate, as soon as they learned of the accident, ordered every possible assistance to be given and no expense spared in taking care of the injured.

Foreigners Were Terror-Stricken.

The engineer and fireman of the freight train saved themselves by jumping as soon as they saw the passenger train coming.

Roy Winch, of Findlay, who, although severely injured, was the first man to rush into the wrecked smoking car to take part in the work of rescue, gave the following account of the terrible sight within:

"As soon as I entered the car I saw that it was filled with a struggling, shrieking mass of agonizing humanity. The lights were out and the screams and yells of the living were mingled with the groans of the dying and fighting each other were something terrible.

"The living, the wounded and the dead

DOZEN DEATHS IN DAY FROM FEVER

MANY CASES ARE CONCEALED

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 13.—Following is the official yellow fever record up to 6 o'clock tonight:

New cases, 50.
Total cases to date, 963.
Deaths, 12.
Total deaths to date, 154.
New disease centers, 14.
Total disease centers to date, 202.
Cases under treatment, 343.

The heavy increase in the number of cases which began four or five days ago is beginning to show in the death list, which can be expected to grow steadily for the next few days. The number of new cases today seems small in comparison with yesterday's record, but it is really 19 short, as that number of cases were turned in by an inspector just after the hour for closing the report. These will figure in tomorrow's report.

Five New Fever Centers.

Among the cases today is Louis Cucullu, Jr., cashier of the Peoples bank, who resides far out in North Johnson street. Another case is Maurice Kenny, former councilman and former member of the legislature. Two of Kenny's daughters were stricken yesterday. Only five of the new fever centers are about Canal street.

Surgeon White today made a change in his organization by which he hopes to accomplish results much quicker. The fumigation and screening was all done by a central department under Dr. Gessner, which sent squads out on notification of cases by physicians. This afternoon Dr. White assembled all of his subordinates in conference and decided to place the screening and fumigation work under the several district headquarters. The present force will be divided up among the district surgeons and Dr. Gessner will be given charge of one of the districts.

Assistant Surgeon Corput has just concluded a thorough investigation of con-

MINISTER AND WIFE FATALLY BEATEN AT HOME BY NEGRO

Assault Is Committed When the Desperado Was Being Given Drink of Water—Pursued by a Policeman and Shot to Death.

BALLSTON, N. Y., Aug. 13.—The Rev. Bernard Schulte and his wife of New York city were attacked at Mechanicsville last night, and probably fatally injured, by a negro, who was today shot and killed in Saratoga while resisting arrest.

Mr. Schulte came to Mechanicsville recently to take charge of the Episcopal church during the absence of the rector, Dr. Oliver Shaw Newell, who is in Europe. William Curtis, a negro, presented himself at the door of the rectory and asked for a drink of water. Mr. Schulte was in the act of turning back to get the water when the negro drew a piece of lead pipe from beneath his coat and felled the clergyman with a terrific blow on the head, following this up with a rain of blows until his victim lay unconscious.

Mrs. Schulte, who was upstairs, hurried down on hearing her husband fall and was met in the hall by the negro, who struck her down before she could make an outcry and continued beating her until he had inflicted injuries from which she can hardly recover.

Policeman James Sullivan discovered Curtis today in Searings alley, a negro colony in Saratoga, and arrested him.

The negro, however, broke away and ran, and, after firing one shot in the air to halt him, Sullivan fired again, shooting him through the head and killing him instantly.

CHINESE WANT THE FRANCHISE

Boycott of Americans and the Hankow Railroad Question Are Closely Related.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Aug. 13.—Before President Roosevelt makes another move in the Chinese boycott or Hankow railway concession he will hear the testimony of a special envoy of Chang Chih Tung, viceroy of the two provinces through which the proposed railway will run.

This envoy is the Rev. Dr. W. H. Martin, who has been preaching and teaching in these provinces for the past forty years. Dr. Martin landed in Seattle last Wednesday, and is on his way to Oyster Bay.

President Roosevelt seems to have made up his mind that the continued boycott against American goods is encouraged by Chinese officials. The question of retaining or surrendering the Hankow franchise, which is now closely allied with the boycott and practically placed in Mr. Roosevelt's hands, will be decided within a fortnight.

The Chinese minister has stated that he hopes to effect a compromise by which it is understood the Hankow railway will be completed under the joint control of the present American interests, represented by J. P. Morgan, and the Chinese government.

HIGHWAYMEN CAPTURED.

Three Men Who Attempt to Hold Up Northern Pacific Train Are Caught.

TACOMA, WASH., Aug. 13.—In a running fight, during which a number of shots were exchanged, Special Agent William G. Cumming, of the Northern Pacific railway, today captured three men who had attempted to hold up an eastbound Northern Pacific passenger train near Sumner.

The men threatened to shoot Conductor Michael Heifrich. Detective Cumming and any other person who might offer resistance. The train was stopped and Cumming chased and captured the men. When placed in jail at Tacoma the men gave the names of Frank Roberts, Charles E. Williams and George Ruck.

TWO BRAKEMEN KILLED IN WABASH COLLISION

TOLEDO, Aug. 13.—Two Wheeling-Wabash freights collided head on near Fremont today, and Brakemen George Wells of Norwalk and George Peck of Toledo were killed. Failure of the westbound train to get orders to stop at Clyde is claimed to be responsible. The crews of both engines escaped by jumping.

PROBE AT WORK IN COTTON LEAK

Grand Jury Will Renew Its Investigation of Agricultural Department Scandal.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—With the grand jury called to reassemble on Tuesday to resume its investigation of the scandal in which the cotton crop reports of the department of agriculture were juggled in the interests of stock speculators, with Mrs. F. A. Peckham, wife of a New York broker who profited from the corruption, and two score employes of the department of agriculture summoned to give testimony, it will be developed within a short time whether President Roosevelt's order for a criminal prosecution can be carried out.

All the persons concerned in the investigation are maintaining strict silence. The reticence which clouks all grand jury proceedings has prevented any opportunity to learn the exact course of the proceedings. The only indication as to this was given in open court nearly three weeks ago.

In asking Justice Wright of the supreme court of the District of Columbia, to compel Moses Haas of New York, whom Secretary Wilson branded as a "go-between" in this scandal, to answer certain questions propounded by the grand jury, District Attorney Beach stated that the grand jury was not then prosecuting Haas. He indicated positively that it was proceeding against Holmes, not for accepting a bribe, but for bribing another government official.

CLEAN SWEEP FOR INDEPENDENCE

ENTHUSIASM IN THE NATION

CHRISTIANIA, Aug. 13.—The Norwegian people, in a referendum taken today, pronounced in favor of the dissolution of the union with Sweden with remarkable, though not unexpected, unanimity. Of 68,000 voters 250,000 cast ballots.

While the full result will not be known for some hours up to midnight returns showed that about one person in 2,000 voted against the dissolution. The difference between the total number of voters and the number of votes cast is attributable to absentees, such as sailors abroad and others who are out of the country at present.

The weather was favorable, and there were scenes of the greatest enthusiasm everywhere. Thousands of women who did not have the right of franchise signed petitions in the streets indorsing the dissolution. In Christiania and other cities the total population turned out, everyone wearing long streamers of the national colors and pictures of Premier Michelsen.

One of the members of the cabinet said tonight: "The result surpasses the most sanguine expectations. The next official steps will be taken after the storthing meets on August 21, when the result of the plebiscite will be communicated to Sweden through the Swedish cabinet and ribsdag. The storthing will repeat the request that the riksdag declare the riksakt inoperative and the union dissolved. The storthing will also express a willingness to negotiate concerning the details of the dissolution.

"It is the earnest desire of Norway to conclude the dissolution amicably. Norway will never retract, but everything will be done to meet the wishes of Sweden in other directions. If peace depends upon abolishing the forts, they will be abolished. Norway must remain a monarchy; the people do not desire a republic."

At midnight reports from 176 places showed a vote of 85,305 for and 37 against dissolution.

BABY'S MIRACULOUS ESCAPE FROM DEATH

Falls, With Window Screen, from Third Story and Is Saved by the Netting.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

PATERSON, N. J., Aug. 13.—Anna Greer, 3 years old, tumbled this afternoon from a third-story window at her home, 125 Fulton street, and had a remarkable escape from death or serious injury.

The baby rolled against the window screen and the frantic mother turned in time to see the baby and screen disappear. When neighbors hurried to the assistance of the baby they found the screen lodged between the stoop and fence so that it formed a netting in which the baby lay.

One woman saw Dr. Todd's big automobile in front of a house in the next block. She jumped into the automobile and began tooting the French horn connected with the machine. Todd hurried out, expecting to find boys amusing themselves. The woman in the automobile explained. Dr. Todd went to the aid of the infant, and after a careful examination he announced that it was unhurt.

ELECTRIC-LIGHTED TENT A LUXURIOUS SPEAKEASY

Pittsburgh Police Retaliate Upon County Detectives by Making a Raid in Mormon Woods. Proprietor Is Held for Court.

Pittsburgh police retaliated upon the county detectives for making raids in the city, by going out into the country yesterday and making arrests.

Police Inspector McEvoy and Lieut. Walsh, about 1 o'clock yesterday morning, went to Mormon woods in Penn township, where Fred Lutz of 235 Pearl street, it is alleged, has been operating a tent as a speakeasy and all-around disorderly house. The tent is handsomely furnished and has electric lights and telephone connection. It is about 40x60 feet. Lutz, three other men and one woman were arrested.

At the hearing before Magistrate Negley yesterday morning Lutz was held in $500 bail for court on charges of selling liquor without license and keeping an immoral house. The other four prisoners were discharged.

"Lutz," said Inspector McEvoy, "has been operating a speakeasy club in the woods in Mormon valley, where Joseph Smith, the alleged prophet and first president of the Latter Day Saints, first began to preach his religious ideas. There is no question but that this den should have been closed up weeks ago by the county officials, who are making themselves so active of late. With Lieut. Walsh and several other officers I raided the tent after Saturday midnight, at the instigation of a woman who tracked her husband there to find out where he spent his nights. We were successful and there are several other similar tents that will go under soon, also."

Two houses on the South Side were raided early yesterday morning. Seventeen Poles were arrested at 2990 Sarah street. They had been having a celebration, and although warned several times to quiet down, failed to take good advice. This cost them $5.40 apiece. Five men were arrested at South Twenty-second and Mary streets, where a fight was in progress. Three of the prisoners paid $8.40 each and the other two were discharged.

The alleged disorderlwy house of Sadie Maginley and James McLoughlin, 1 Fountain street, was raided yesterday afternoon and the alleged proprietors and seven men were arrested.

were piled in one indiscriminate mass all over the floor of the car; the living entangled with the arms and legs of the dead, and many of them pinned down by the dead bodies of the Italians.

"Some of the dead were so badly mashed that through their mouths protruded hideous masses of intestines.

"Of two men, Italians, I saw pinned down, the one on top being caught in some way about the chest so that he could not get away. The man underneath him was also held down, mainly by the weight of the man on top, who in his frantic efforts to get away, kicked the man under him literally to death.

Trampled the Dying.

"Terrorized by the death of their companions, the hiss of escaping steam and fear of death in the darkness, the Italians lost all control over their shattered nerves and stamping over the living and dead, fought their way out of the car. Several of them were almost as badly injured by fighting each other as by the wreck, and to what extent their pounding and walking on the wounded is responsible for many of the injuries sustained cannot be known.

"Whether it was that the people were dazed or that it was a case of brutal selfishness, I do not know, but I never saw people so unwilling to help. They would come up and take a look at the car, shudder and then walk away.

"The engineer of the passenger train was nipped between the engine and tender and when we found him he was hanging head down by the shreds of one leg, over the side of the engine. Two men held him in an upright position for over half an hour before we were able to release him. He died shortly afterwards. He was conscious only a part of the time."

Caused by Slow Watch.

President Caniff of the Nickel Plate today stated that from the information in the hands of the officials, the freight train crew had orders to go on the siding at Kinsman and there await the passage of the passenger train. Why this was not done in time to permit the passenger train to go by or a flagman sent out has not yet been learned. A rigid investigation is, however, being made by the railway officials.

It is said that the watch of the engineer of the freight train was slow, and that the engineer believed he had eight minutes to get his train on the siding before the passenger train was due. The freight train had slackened speed and was about to back in on the siding from the main track when the passenger train came tearing along at the rate of 45 miles an hour and dashed into it.

ALAN WOOD DIES IN METROPOLIS

Former Pittsburgh Iron Manufacturer Succumbs to an Operation.

MEMBER OF FAMOUS FAMILY

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Herald Building, Herald Square,
NEW YORK, Aug. 13.

Alan W. Wood, who amassed a fortune in the steel business in Pittsburgh, died this morning in Roosevelt hospital, following a second operation for intestinal rupture. Mr. Wood was taken ill on Thursday and that night an operation was performed upon him by Dr. Bull, but little hope was held out for his recovery.

It is understood that Mr. Wood, whose fortune has been variously estimated at from $10,000,000 to $20,000,000, recently made a will, but nothing is yet known concerning its provisions, although his widow will receive the one-third share to which she is entitled by law, if she does not get the bulk of the estate.

Mr. Wood's children are the Waldorf-Astoria, but they would not be interviewed. Mr. Wood, who was 55 years old, retired from business four years ago and moved to this city from Pittsburgh.

After selling his home in Forbes street, near Atwood street, Oakland, Mr. Wood purchased one of the handsomest pieces of frontage in Morewood avenue, near Fifth avenue, and had erected a fine brownstone residence on the property about four years ago. When the house was nearing completion Mr. Wood's first wife died, and shortly afterward he began to close up his affairs in this city. About four years ago he moved to New York.

The new residence, which is one of the handsomest and most costly in Pittsburgh's fine residence district, was completed and stood vacant for over a year, when it was sold. All his local business connections were severed when he gave up his residence here.

Declines 6 Per Cent in 1904—Values Are Reduced 31 Per Cent by Cut in Prices.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—A report on the coke production of the United States for the year 1904 by Edward W. Parker for the United States geological survey, shows the total output of the coke ovens for the year was 23,821,520 short tons as against 25,274,281 short tons for 1903, a falling off of more than 6 per cent. The decline in value was in much greater proportion, being from $66,498,664 to $46,020,133, or 31 per cent.

"The decline in production was natural," says the report, "due to a slump in the iron trade during the summer, in turn caused for the most part by the unsettled conditions that usually attend a presidential campaign, and while these conditions also affected prices, the great difference between the values of the production in 1904 and 1903 was due to the abnormally high prices which prevailed in the early part of 1903, when, because of the fuel famine induced by the anthracite strike of the preceding year, manufacturers of coke were able to obtain almost any figure they might demand."

FRENCH TREATED AS HEROES.

English Smother Naval Visitors With Attention—Scenes of Enthusiasm Ashore.

PORTSMOUTH, ENGLAND, Aug. 13.—The last day ashore of the French naval visitors was marked by scenes of enthusiasm unprecedented during a week in which the English simply smothered their guests with attention, from able seamen to admiral. Enormous crowds of excursionists thronged the town, harbor and navy yard.

The closing function was a reception given by Vice Admiral Sir Archibald Douglas, commander-in-chief at Portsmouth, at Admiralty house, after which the French officers and men boarded their ships preparatory to their departure.

The torpedo boats, the first section of the fleet, will leave at 5:30 a. m. tomorrow, followed by the battleships and cruisers, and shortly after noon the entire fleet will be on its way to France. Vice Admiral Caillard has issued an autograph message to the people of England thanking them for their magnificent reception.

FIGHT AMONG ITALIANS.

Filtration Plant Employes Draw Knives, and One Man Is Cut.

A fight broke out among the Italians at the filtration plant camp, near Aspinwall, Saturday night, in which one man was badly cut. Seven were arrested. About 20 Italians were in a tent drinking when a free-for-all fight started. Anthony Maralie, aged 40, was cut in the left side and another man is also said to have been cut. The noise attracted Officer William Gallway, who, with two officers employed by the contractors, arrested seven of the combatants.

The injured man and the prisoners were taken to the borough lockup in a wagon. Dr. L. H. Mitchell dressed Maralie's wound, a deep gash six inches long in the side, and he was then sent to the temporary hospital at the camp. The other men were arraigned yesterday morning on a charge of disorderly conduct before Justice W. P. Lowry, and were each fined $5 and costs. The man who did the cutting could not be identified.

SEEKS DEATH ON RAIL.

Disappointed in His Effort, Altoona Man Disappears from His Home.

ALTOONA, PA., Aug. 13.—John Weber, aged 45 years, late last night jumped the fence that surrounds the local railroad yards and threw himself in front of a freight train, following an altercation with his wife as they were passing along the street. The engineer succeeded in stopping the engine just in time to prevent it from running over the man.

Weber was arrested and told the police that he was trying to frighten his wife, but this morning Mrs. Weber appeared at the police headquarters and announced that her husband had disappeared. He has not been found.

DOZEN DEATHS FROM FEVER

dilions in Algiers, that part of New Orleans on the west bank of the Mississippi river. He reported today that he had found not a single suspicious case, which indicates that the prompt steps taken to screen and fumigate the original cases have been effective in preventing a spread.

Many Cases Concealed.

The great cause for the spread has been the concealment of cases and the change of residence of people who have been infected. Dozens of cases are on record which show conclusively that the people had moved away from a house where infection had existed. This Dr. White proposes to stop, and while no drastic measures are being taken, he is enforcing his authority.

The effectiveness of the district headquarters, which are making close investigations of the 17 districts, is responsible for a large number of the new cases which have been reported during the last few days, and as the efficiency of that force increases, an increase in the number of cases daily can be expected. Physicians who have failed to report cases that are discovered are given an opportunity to correct their omission, but a second offense will result in prosecution under the law. This has also brought out a large number of cases that were under cover.

First Death at Patterson.

Patterson, the largest center of infection outside of the city, reports three new cases today and the first death. The victim is a young lady. She died this morning and this has naturally depressed the spirits of the people. They have had 39 cases there so far. They have opened an emergency hospital which now has seven patients.

At Bon Ami, in Calcasieu parish, there is only one case of yellow fever, with no new cases and no suspicious cases. At the detention camp near Tallulah, in Madison parish, there are two cases, one of which is in a serious condition.

State Health Officer Sanders of Alabama and Quarantine Officer Moore of Mobile are making an inspection of the Mississippi coast towns, to determine whether it would be wise to lift the Alabama embargo against the Mississippi coast. They reached Gulfport tonight without finding any suspicious illness. Assistant Surgeon Egbert reported to Dr. White today and Assistant Surgeons Mullans and Greene are expected tomorrow. Dr. White has been advised that Past Assistant Surgeon von Erzdorf, who is now at Colon, has been ordered here. Assistant Surgeon Berry has passed the crisis in his attack of fever and is now convalescing.

Expert Ordered from Colon.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Past Assistant Surgeon R. H. Von Ezdorf of the public health and marine hospital service, has been ordered to proceed from Colon to New Orleans for duty in the campaign against yellow fever. Surgeon Von Ezdorf is an expert in yellow fever matters and has been on duty with the isthmian canal commission in that line of duty.

HEAT KILLS ONE BABY, AND PROSTRATES A WOMAN

A woman, who refused to give her name, was overcome by the heat in Robinson street last evening and taken to Mercy hospital. Her condition is not serious and she will be released this morning.

BIG ISSUES HANG FIRE WHILE KOREAN SITUATION IS DISCUSSED

which will suffer most is America, which will understand it in about 10 years, when it is too late.

To this argument Baron Komura dissented most vigorously, although in the most friendly manner, contending Japan sought to secure for herself in Korea only the commercial and industrial position to which she was entitled, and to aid in its civilization and development as well as to protect the kingdom from administrative anarchy.

A Fitting Subject.

That the Korean question should be first to be discussed in the peace conference is strangely fitting, as it was over Korea the long struggle between Russia and Japan, which culminated in the present bloody war, began. After Japan was forced out of Port Arthur and Liatung in 1895, each became suspicious of the intention of the other's influence in Korea and, first in the Lobanoff agreement of 1896 and later in the Nissi-Rosen agreement of 1898, they entered upon mutual obligations.

In the former Japan secured the right to protect the imperial family and to build the Seoul-Fusan telegraph; Russia to establish a telegraph line from Seoul to the Russian frontier. In the latter, while there were mutual obligations to protect the independence and territorial integrity of Korea, Japan's industrial and commercial supremacy in Korea was recognized.

Ever since Korea has been the bone of contention Japan has always been suspicious of Russian encroachment. At last the continued occupation of Manchuria by Russia and the Yalu lumber concession induced Japan to try to come to a definite settlement with Russia in the negotiations preceding the war. They proved futile, and in the Japanese imperial rescript declaring war, the emperor of Japan said:

The Mikado's Message.

"The safety of Korea is in danger; the interests of the empire are menaced."

Now, by a sort of inexorable logic, the fate of Korea comes up at Portsmouth for final settlement.

The Japanese version of the origin and history of the decision of the plenipotentiaries to observe the strictest secrecy regarding the proceedings of the peace conference, differs materially from the Russian. From an authoritative Japanese source, it is learned that secrecy was one of the conditions preliminarily arranged between the representatives of the two countries at Washington before the plenipotentiaries arrived in this country.

One of the chief reasons advanced by Count Cassini for not desiring to have the conference held in Washington was that public sentiment in America was hostile to the Russians and that the proceedings could not be kept out of the press. Therefore, he insisted, if the conference was to be held in the United States it was essential the most rigid secrecy be observed. The matter was the subject of an exchange of views between Count Cassini and Mr. Takahira, conducted through a medium which is not disclosed, as a result of which secrecy was agreed upon as a condition precedent to the conference.

Precedent Favors It.

"Moreover," said this Japanese authority, "all international precedent and usage favored the rule of secrecy. It would be manifestly improper for a great international issue to be tried in the newspapers day by day and hour by hour. Publicity would necessarily hamper and embarrass the negotiations. In the peace conference at Paris, following your Spanish-American war, that rule obtained, and it was not until sometime after the conference adjourned that the proceedings became public."

But in view of the world-wide interest in the negotiations and in the known "enterprise" of American journalism, Count Cassini and Mr. Takahira decided it would be proper to make to the press, at such times as were deemed advisable, brief formal statements agreed to by both sides. All other statements published were to be considered unauthenticated. It was to secure the possibility of secrecy that the United States placed at the disposal of the plenipotentiaries the building upon a government reservation where to public entrance could be closed.

M. Witte Assented.

"It was rather remarkable," said the Japanese, "if M. Witte had not been apprised before his arrival at Portsmouth of this preliminary agreement as to secrecy entered into upon the particular suggestion of Count Cassini. At any rate, when the question was raised by our plenipotentiaries at the first session of the conference, he assented and has not since protested."

M. Witte, however, still insists he courts on behalf of the Russians the widest publicity of the proceedings. He said today in response to Japanese statements:

"I am not acquainted with the understandings which may have taken place before I was appointed plenipotentiary for the peace negotiations. What I said and what I repeat is that the initiative of keeping the deliberations of the conference secret was taken at the first meeting by the Japanese plenipotentiaries. It is true the Russian plenipotentiaries made no opposition to it because the Russians did not come to America to defend the rights of the press. There are so many differences on serious questions between Russia and Japan that we would not undertake to add more or less important affairs. What I wish to have clear is that if the Japanese have nothing to the contrary I am ready at any moment to publish the full text of all of the documents concerned of the peace conference as well as the record of the proceedings."

CLAIMS M. WITTE IS PUTTING UP A BLUFF

This Is the View Taken of His Reply to Japan's Demands by Tokyo Newspapers.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

TOKYO, Aug. 13.—The Nippon this morning in reference to the peace negotiations prints the following:

"Reports from abroad, purporting to come from Russian authority, that Russia has instructed M. Witte to refuse the cession of territory and the payment of indemnity, are nothing but mere bluff. Russian diplomacy has shown itself to be full of bluffing and intimidation, particularly so during the period preceding the present hostilities.

"Whatever measures Russia takes, the fact stands out clear as daylight that Sakhalin is under occupation and the fate of Kamchatka is within easy command of Japan. Other portions of Russia's maritime possessions are within easy access of Japanese assailants.

"A shrewd diplomat and statesman like M. Witte cannot be blind to the facts. A man of his financial experience ought to be alive to the fact the expenditures required for the continuation of hostilities ought to be utilized in a channel productive of a greater benefit to Russia. However blind Russian statesmen may be, it is impossible to believe they fail to appreciate the logic of events.

"Whatever differences may exist between the plenipotentiaries, they can only be in the point and degree of cession and indemnity, not in the principle of cession and indemnity."

The Hochie takes a pessimistic view of the negotiations in view of the reported refusal of Russia to cede territory. It declares that Japan ought to pay more attention to Manchuria than to Portsmouth.

CITIZENS OF THE STATE ARE BEARING EXPENSE

Governor McLane of New Hampshire Makes Denial of Unpleasant Rumor Regarding Peace Envoys.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

NEW CASTLE, N. H., Aug. 13.—Gov. McLane denied a rather unpleasant rumor tonight, when he explained the character of the entertainment provided for the peace envoys by the state of New Hampshire. For several days, and especially since the Russian officials began complaining of the service provided by the managers of the hotel, a story has been floated about to the effect that the Frank Jones estate was paying all the expenses of the two commissions while here. The Frank Jones estate owns the Wentworth hotel property and is still conducting the Frank Jones brewery. The unpleasant part of the rumor was that an effort was being made to carry on a little advertising scheme in connection with the great peace negotiations.

"The Russian and Japanese envoys are the guests of the state of New Hampshire in every sense of the word, and it is so understood completely," said Gov. McLane. "There was no fund in the state treasury from which to draw for the expenses of such entertainment, and the legislature not being in session there was no way of officially and formally providing for them. It was on this account that a dozen or more public spirited citizens came forward and offered to pay the expenses for the state. If the legislature sees fit to reimburse them when it assembles, well and good. If not, well and good also. They will not complain."

RUSSIAN CAPITAL IS IN DARK ON CONFERENCE

Hope Is Aroused by the Failure of Japan to Terminate the Meeting at Portsmouth.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 13.—The Russian capital is in the dark regarding the meaning of the prolonged conference at Portsmouth on Saturday. In high quarters today there is a certain feeling of hopefulness noticeable. The only comment vouchsafed officially was that M. Witte's answer seemed not altogether unacceptable to the Japanese, else the conference would have ended there and then.

Count Lamsdorff, who is keeping in close touch with the emperor, went again to Peterhof today, bearing the latest messages. The emperor has seen the other ministers also during the last two days, but has found no occasion to summon a council of ministers, and M. Witte's course seems to be meeting with his full aproval.

All official dispatches received from Portsmouth, after being deciphered, are forwarded to the emperor, whose comment and suggestions thereon are sometimes expressed in marginal annotations.

FIERCE STORM BREAKS OVER NEW YORK CITY

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Widespread damage was caused by a thunder storm of unusual violence, accompanied by a high wind and a deluge of rain, that burst over New York and the vicinity today. A boathouse at the foot of West One Hundred and Fifty-second street, in which a large number of persons had taken shelter, was struck by lightning and Miss Jeannette Freer, aged 20, was instantly killed. A dozen other persons were rendered unconscious, but quickly revived.

A Webster avenue trolley car, carrying nearly 100 passengers, was struck, the lightning running down the trolley pole and grounding through the tracks. Although the car and its occupants were unscathed, a panic was precipitated among the passengers. Fourteen persons, almost all women, were injured, nine of them so seriously that they had to be removed to a hospital.

Five hundred immigrants were in danger for an hour, when two barges on which they were broke away from the dock at Ellis island and were blown down the bay. Three tugs grappled the barges and succeeded in holding them until the storm subsided.

One death and three cases of prostration are reported from the heat, which was intense before the storm broke.

Fireman William Dayton was instantly killed tonight and several other members of the crew of hook and ladder company No. 2 narrowly escaped death, when the truck was thrown against an elevated railroad pillar on Third avenue by a street car. The ladder truck was crossing the avenue at East Thirteenth street in response to an alarm, when the car crashed into it. Dayton was caught between the pillar and the apparatus.

AN OLD EMPLOYE GETS HIS REVENGE

Greenkeeper at Country Club Is Shot Down at Home by Man Who Was Discharged.

REPORTS OF SHOOTING VARY

Louis Rosenbeck, green keeper at the Country club, in Beechwood boulevard, was shot and fatally injured by Daniel Troy, a former employe of the club, at Rosenbeck's home in Nine Mile run last night. Rosenbeck is now in the Pittsburgh hospital, East End. Troy is still at large.

The officers of the Country club two hours after the shooting announced a reward of $250 for the apprehension of Troy.

Several versions of the shooting are given. One of the first to be received was that Rosenbeck and his wife and two children left home yesterday evening to take a walk, and about 9 o'clock returned. Troy forced an entrance into the house, concealed himself in the dining-room, and waited for Rosenbeck's return. When Rosenbeck and his wife entered the house Rosenbeck went into the parlor and struck a match to light the lamp. Troy, from his position in the dark dining-room, took aim through the open door and, being guided by the light of Rosenbeck's match, fired a ball from a 32-calibre revolver.

Rosenbeck was struck in the abdomen, but, disregarding his wound, he dropped the lighted match and running into the dark dining room, grappled with Troy. A terrific struggle ensued in the dark. The men are both well built and were pretty evenly matched in strength. In the struggle the furniture was knocked about and upset. While the men struggled Troy held his revolver and attempted to use it again but Rosenbeck finally wrenched the revolver from his assailant's grasp.

Weakened greatly by loss of blood, Rosenbeck was finally forced to let go his hold on Troy and the latter ran through the rear of the house and escaped in the darkness.

A different report of the shooting from that first made was given by Capt. Emmett, who made an investigation. He stated that Rosenbeck, Mrs. Rosenbeck and Troy had been at a small picnic during the day and had returned to Rosenbeck's house together. Mrs. Rosenbeck was in a room apart from the two men when she heard a shot. She ran into the room as Troy rushed out and found her husband lying wounded on the floor. She had heard no quarrel and knew of no reason for the shooting.

At an early hour this morning the physicians at the hospital had not succeeded in finding the bullet and stated that they had but little hope for his recovery, as he was sinking rapidly.

Troy is aged 32 and single. The description furnished the police gives him as dark complexion, smooth face and weighing about 190 pounds. He boarded in Nine Mile run.

TWO ARE DEAD IN HEAD-ON COLLISION OF TRAINS

Mistake in Orders Results in Fatal Collision on Wheeling and Lake Erie.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

FINDLEY, O., Aug. 13.—Two Wheeling & Lake Erie freight trains met in a head-on collision two miles east of Fremont this morning, killing two trainmen.

The dead are:

G. E. Wells of Norwalk, O.; E. G. Peck of Toledo, O.

The trains were No. 44, east bound, in charge of Conductor C. P. Larson of Massillon, and train No. 45, west bound, in charge of Conductor W. Smith. A misunderstanding of orders is said to have been the cause of the accident. The trains were to have passed at Clyde, eight miles east.

Wells and Peck, both brakemen on the west bound train, were riding on the first car behind the engine. Wells was killed instantly, being crushed by heavy timbers. His face and body were scalded by escaping steam. Peck was removed from the debris and died at St. Mary's hospital a few hours later. The heads of both engines were battered in and both boilers were driven through the cabs. The tender and four freight cars on No. 45 were completely demolished.

GUFFEY KEEPING TAB ON GORDON

NOT ENCOURAGING FUSION

The Democratic state convention will be reconvened at Harrisburg on Wednesday for the purpose of naming a candidate for supreme court justice. It is settled Judge John Stewart of Chambersburg, the Republican nominee, is to be indorsed. The balance of the business will consist in reconstructing the platform adopted in April.

William J. Brennen is chairman of the resolutions committee. He has been doing some work on the platform and will have the declaration of party principles completed when he arrives in Harrisburg tomorrow night in company with Col. J. M. Guffey. His efforts will consist in extracting as much comfort as possible for the Democracy from the present Philadelphia situation.

The Guffey Democratic machine is really not extracting comfort from the Philadelphia situation. It regrets there is any trouble in the Quaker City this year, and would have preferred to have seen harmony. Col. Guffey and his friends realize there is just enough stir in the state at present to cause the Republicans to be on their guard and strengthen their organization for the gubernatorial campaign.

While there was considerable talk a few weeks ago about a fusion movement in the state this fall, the scheme is not now receiving encouragement from the Democratic leaders. Mr. Brennen in his platform Wednesday will make some reference to fusion, but it will consist principally in an invitation to Republicans to vote for William H. Berry for state treasurer.

From the day ex-Judge James Gay Gordon, the leader of the anti-Guffey Democrats and general political counsel for John Wanamaker, squeezed in behind Mayor John Weaver, Col. Guffey has been on his guard. He has seen in it an attempt on the part of Gordon to pave the way toward the realization of two ambitions, the wrecking of the Guffey machine and the nomination of himself for governor. Gordon has worked cunningly at his program. He has studiously endeavored to keep his interests in the background and has succeeded in buncoing a number of people into the belief his sole purpose is that of a public benefactor.

Guffey is against Gordon to a finish. He will show this in the convention of Wednesday, when he will not permit Gordon men from the rural districts to make a fight on the Donnelly-Ryan Democratic organization of Philadelphia. The ex-judge is hopeful some action will be taken which will discredit Donnelly and Ryan and weaken their hold in the Quaker City. Guffey will not allow the re-opening of this old dispute.

The general policy of doing nothing to boost the game of Gordon will be followed by the Democratic machine. For some time instructions have been going out to the Democratic county organizations to guard against any attempt of the Gordon-Wanamaker combination to get control of the county committees. Guffey is determined Gordon must not secure the nomination for governor. So far he has given no indication of his favorite, but it would not be surprising if he is found behind the candidacy of George W. Guthrie of Pittsburgh.

LENIENT TO THIEVES.

Moke Condones Their Offenses With Light Fines, but Lashes Out Furiously at Common Drunks.

Magistrate Moke was busy yesterday morning. He had 90 offenders up at the hearing and he dealt out alleged justice in a style which is peculiarly his own. Two men against whom strong evidence of theft pointed were let off with fines of $5 and costs each, while those who, in the excitement of Saturday night, had looked too long upon the wine cup, were made to keenly feel the lash. The two men charged with larceny were Joseph Venable and William White. The former is said to have snatched a pocketbook from a woman, while the theft of a turkey was the crime imputed to White. The wrath of the magistrate was not strongly directed against them. John Mates, a Chinaman, was fined $50 and costs for harboring young girls in his laundry at 326 Liberty street. Joseph Fitzsimmons and David Hickey drew fines of $25 or 30 days for trying to steal a pocketbook and for beating Policeman Barney Eggert. There were a few other cases of minor importance, which netted the city fair returns.

The principal case before Magistrate Kane was that of John Ricksaw of Carson street. A fight started in a Penn avenue saloon on Saturday night and Ricksaw is said to have been there. William Mersh was struck on the temple, an artery being severed. The man who struck the blow escaped, and the case was held over to enable the police to find him. It was alleged that Alfred Howard, a negro, had pointed a revolver at another man, and he was fined $25 and costs.

The first day will be devoted to the reception of the visiting Elks and the dedication ceremonies. The next day the wives and daughters of the members will hold a reception in the new building. The following day the building will be thrown open to the general public for inspection. On the second day a banquet and reception will be given the women, and in the evening there will be a dance. Complete, the building and grounds will have cost the lodge $140,000. It will be among the finest and most complete lodge and club buildings in the country.

Detected Burglar Hides in Building Seven Hours Before Being Dragged Into Open.

CLEVER THEFT IS FRUSTRATED

George Smith, alias Howard Hall, an alleged burglar, was arrested yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock by Inspector Robinson, under the stairway of the second floor above George F. MacDonald's confectionery at 208 Sixth street. Smith had been discovered at 11 a. m. and played hide and seek with the police and detectives for seven hours before he was dragged from his hiding place by Inspector Robinson. At the station house he said that he was 24 years old and that his correct name is Howard Hall.

About 11 o'clock yesterday morning MacDonald went to his place to look after some perishable goods. When the store was opened up by Earnest Cousins, a colored porter, they found about $50 worth of goods packed and placed by a rear window, ready to be taken away. Lying near the plunder was the thief's hat, coat and shoes.

The porter, after further investigation, also found the thief had gained entrance to the jewelry store of Graf & Nieman through the cellar. Word was sent to the detective bureau and Detectives Aymer and Demmel were sent there to make an investigation. In the jewelry store they found the thief had packed up a dozen umbrellas and a lot of silverware. This plunder was lying in the rear of the store.

Indulge in Game of Tag.

Cousins, who had gone to the street, reported that he saw the burglar on the roof. The officers started up and the porter notified them he saw the burglar climb from the roof through a window in the Curry institute on the third floor. The officers went through the class room and failed to find the man. They then looked over the building and, suspecting someone connected with the building with having packed up the plunder, gave up the search and returned to the station house.

However, they left several officers to guard all the entrances to the place. Inspector Robinson heard of the attempt at robbery and thinking the thief might still be in hiding within the building, went to make a search for himself. He looked the first floors over carefully and then went upstairs. Sitting on a high box under the stairway Robinson found Smith and pulled him from his hiding place. The prisoner was almost exhausted and asked for water. He was in his stocking feet and said he was glad he had been found. At the station house he told how the detectives and police had overlooked him.

Cousins saw Smith several times, but the negro could not impress the officers that he was serious in his observations. Smith said he remained in his hiding place for five hours, and his legs were so cramped that several times he almost cried out from pain.

Laughed at the Officer.

Smith told Superintendent Wallace that he laughed when he heard the officers declare there was no one in the place and express their opinion that somebody connected with the stores had made the attempt at robbery. He told Wallace there were others implicated with him, but that they had gotten away when MacDonald opened his place.

The thieves made an attempt to open the safe in MacDonald's place. The combination knob had been knocked off and the plates about the lock unscrewed. It is thought the men intended to return later in the evening and blow the safe and complete the robbery. Smith laughed at the officers when they talked to him at the station house.

"I saw you fellows a dozen times," he said, "and would have gotten away if it had not been for the negro porter. If I could have gotten hold of him I would have taken his shoes and hat and dashed out."

In Smith's coat was found a pair of eyeglasses and $15. The glasses had been taken from Neiman's store.

Hall is wanted in Allegheny for alleged horse stealing. On July 8 last Howard and Clarence Hall, representing themselves as tobacco salesmen, hired a horse and runabout belonging to O. Eisman, and never returned it. Detective Einstein has the warrant and has been looking for Hall for several weeks. Hall admitted this theft last night, and told Inspector Robinson he sold the horse and wagon in Steubenville, O. Hall said he also was a friend of the members of the Hunter-Gardner gang, now in the Western penitentiary for burglaries committed in this city last December.

FAVOR MEMORIAL HALL.

United Labor League Asks Organized Labor to Support the Project at the Polls.

The United Labor league last night adopted resolutions favoring the erection of a soldiers' memorial hall by the county. Under the law the proposition must be submitted to the voters at the November election. The league asks organized labor to support the project at the polls. The resolution follows:

Resolved, That we, the United Labor league, representing all the local bodies of organized labor in this county, heartily approve the proposition for the erection of such a memorial to the memory of those of our fellow citizens who served in the Union army in defense of our country and flag, and whose unselfish services aided largely in bringing forth a victory which brought peace and prosperity to all the people of our land, and believing the erection of such a memorial tribute is justly due by our people, and that such a "Hall of Fame" will stand as a patriotic lesson to coming generations. We join in an appeal to the members of organized labor throughout Allegheny county to lend their votes and influence towards the approval of this patriotic proposition.

A resolution introduced by the Painters' district council condemning the city administration for employing laborers for painting and glazing in Schenley park was adopted.

LEAVES THE KEROSENE CAN AND IT PROMPTLY EXPLODES

A boarder in the house of Andrew Kulowski, rear of 30 South Eighteenth street, used kerosene in lighting the fire yesterday afternoon, then put the can in front of the stove and went into the yard. The result was an explosion that nearly frightened the occupants of the house out of their wits and shook the house almost off its foundations. When they had recovered sufficiently from the fright to investigate they found the room a wreck and a slight blaze on the floor, which was quickly extinguished.

EXPLAINS MASS DURING SERVICE

While Father O'Connell Officiates at Altar, Bishop Canevin Delivers Instruction.

MEMORIAL FOR DEAD RECTORS

At the last mass in the Church of the Epiphany in Washington street, held at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, there was an innovation in the services. Despite the extremely hot morning the big church was crowded with worshipers and the congregation showed by its attention that the services were of more than ordinary interest.

The high mass of Sunday is always held at 11 a. m., but yesterday the mass offered was a low one, and the Rev. Lawrence A. O'Connell was the officiating priest. Before the mass began the male choir sang a number of hymns and at their conclusion Bishop Canevin ascended the pulpit. When Father O'Connell ascended the altar the bishop announced that he intended to explain all parts of the mass to the congregation while the mass was being offered.

Each part of the service was explained in detail and as the mass progressed the bishop pointed out the principal parts and gave the reason for each prayer by the priest and the different times during the mass at which a special prayer is offered for the Catholic church, the congregation, the civil officers of the city, state and national governments for divine guidance.

After the first gospel, the time generally set apart by the priests for the sermon or instruction, Bishop Canevin took to explain the origin and wearing of the vestments used in the mass and other services in the church. The reason for the use of vestments of a certain color during services on Sundays and week days was given in minute detail and the history of the vestments was recited by the bishop.

The explanation of the mass in the Church of the Epiphany yesterday is the first service of the kind since the old St. Paul's cathedral at Fifth avenue and Grant street was abandoned by the congregation. The bishop explained that when the people come late for mass, those who enter the church after the "offertory" do not hear mass, and unless they remain for another mass they commit a mortal sin. Those who come in after the mass is begun also sin, and he took a moment to announce that there are many people who seem not to notice that while walking up the aisle during mass, having arrived late, they publically parade a venial sin before the congregation.

Bishop Canevin announced that the regular monthly collection, which is taken up in the Church of the Epiphany on the second Sunday of each month, would be taken during the mass, and that the total amount of the collection taken at the seven masses yesterday will be used for a memorial in the new St. Paul's cathedral in Bellefield in honor of the deceased rectors of the old St. Paul's cathedral. The shape which the proposed memorial will take has not yet been fully decided upon.

Butler was sleeping in Owen O'Hara's lodging house, 84 Water street, at 4 o'clock yesterday morning, when the lamp in the room exploded, setting fire to the bed. Butler escaped in his night clothes. The damage to the room was about $50.

Suppressing the Crap Players.

Crap playing in the streets of the Hill district is to be suppressed by the police, as it is becoming too prevalent. Joseph Smith, John Kellen and Harmon Thompson, negroes, were arrested at the corner of Logan street and Isle alley yesterday afternoon. They will have a hearing this morning.

In acquiring control of the Little Kanawha railroad it is probable the Vanderbilt system is looking more to a footing in the rich traffic territory of West Virginia than to a southern outlet to tidewater. The plans for the new road include a connection with the Lake Erie & Pittsburgh road as well as with roads leading to the Atlantic seaboard, and apparent preference is given to reaching the "Little Giant" of Pittsburgh.

There is no apparent improvement in the conditions in Russia as a result of peace conference or the promise of a national assembly. Rioting continues in Poland; disturbances are frequent in the Caucasus region and revolutionary sentiment is rife everywhere. The Russian government has hesitated and temporized so long, it has not the confidence of the people and actual measures, only, can suffice to restore the public faith.

After a final conference in Parkersburg, the West Virginia "insurgents," as they are called, have made a formal, official announcement that there will be no opposition, as far as they know, to the re-election of Senator Stephen B. Elkins. They are satisfied Mr. Elkins is a good representative and may stay in the senate another term. Just what the conferences are intended to accomplish remains a state secret. They are all good Republicans.

Official reports from New Orleans maintain a hopeful tone despite increasing cases. The hopefulness is based on the comparatively low death rate and on the fact that new cases are not appearing in the quarters where the disease originated. This latter fact proves that infection is not being spread by the cases under surveillance; that screening, or disinfection, or both has the desired effect. It is the most hopeful feature in a grave situation.

Statistics of the exports of manufactures for the year ended June 30 show the largest total in the history of the country, exceeding the total exports of all classes of products for the year 1876 and exceeding the combined exports and imports of the country for any year prior to the civil war. This is a most gratifying exhibit. It may explain any decrease in the export of foodstuffs that may be noted, for it indicates a vastly increased consuming population at home. It also proves American productions can compete with others in the markets of the world in increasing ratio.

Great Britain and France having reached a friendly understanding are not disposed to overlook opportunities to bring their peoples into closer relations. The visit of the French fleet to English waters last week has been made the occasion for many interchanges of courtesies and expressions of friendly interest. These things have their effect. The critics may laugh at the "gushing," but the amenities arouse mutual favor. It is a good sign that these functions are frequent between the nations separated by the English channel only, since the disappearance of the gulf of ancient animosity.

There is a lively controversy among Allegheny Republicans about the indorsement of a candidate for a place on the county ticket. This is an evidence of party health. It indicates eager interest in party matters and a belief in certain victory. Indorsement in such a cases is not final, merely an expression of local preference. The candidates will be nominated in open primaries by direct vote of all the Republican voters of the county. There is no particular harm in an expression of preference by district organizations, nor do they conclude anything. The voters will choose their candidates in September.

It is reported from China the boycott on American goods has gone beyond control of officials and even of those who started it. For the purposes of the campaign this is probably true. For the matter of that American popular antipathy to the Chinese coolie laborer is also beyond official control. There will be no modification of the exclusion laws. President Roosevelt has guaranteed proper interpretation of those laws and removal of abuses of authority. That is a concession to justice, not to Chinese prejudice, and if the Chinese boycott on American products continues in face of it, the commercial relations between the two countries will suffer. The United States will be no worse hurt than China, since the American goods will get there through other than direct channels and probably with strange labels on them.

This Week's Convention.

When the recalled Democratic state convention meets in Harrisburg this week, it will be asked to indorse the Republican nominee for the supreme court bench, Justice John Stewart of Franklin county. It will do this because it would have no shadow of hope for the election of a Democratic candidate. For the same reason the previous Democratic state convention nominated just one candidate for the superior court bench, because it had no chance to elect more than one. In that case it exhibited unusual wisdom, selecting a candidate wholly creditable to the party and the state.

The Democratic convention this week, however, will not assign the true reason for its indorsement of the Republican nominee. It will, instead, make a pretense of lofty principle and a spread of oratory about keeping the bench above the plane of partisan politics. Every Democrat will know what it means; that a Democratic candidate would be promptly named if there was one chance in a hundred that he could be elected. The play of oratory will not befog the unterrified. It is not intended for that purpose. The purpose of the non-partisan judiciary play will be to afford an excuse for certain "reformers" to vote the Democratic ticket without relinquishing their claim to the title of "independents." These men have been helping the Democratic party for years, under one title or another, and this year they are to be given as good an excuse as the Democrats can devise for opposing the one candidate on the Republican ticket whose election will be contested. The Democrats and the "independents" hope the ruse may attract the support of weak-kneed Republicans in various sections, as well as that of the disappointed officeseekers who have only one use for a party; who give allegiance only as long as they have hope of reward by preferment.

It is all very clever on the part of the Democrats. It may actually succeed in getting a few hundred votes from the back townships for William H. Berry, preferred Democratic candidate for state treasurer. It will not fool many Republicans, however. Most of them understand the game and can play at it themselves. Nearly all of them know the "insurgent" tactics—"independents," they call themselves—practiced in every state campaign for 10 years, the object in every instance being to aid the Democratic party. Every Republican ought to understand the motive back of the attacks on the Republican candidate for treasurer, the misrepresentations, even to the absurd intimations that President Roosevelt might not support that candidate if he resided in this state. It is the familiar work of an expert literary bureau, as unscrupulous as it is clever, backed by a few gentlemen of wealth who have never been troubled by principles loaned for the campaign to the uses of the Democratic state machine.

Encouraging Replies.

Gov. Pennypacker has received many encouraging letters from the governors of other states in reply to his invitation to a conference to devise uniform laws of divorce. Some of the executives express themselves as in warm accord with the movement. Not a few agree to send delegates though no legislative provision has been made in their states for doing so.

In the aggregate these replies demonstrate the crystallization of public opinion on this important question. The sentiment is almost unanimous throughout this country that disruption of the marriage relation has become too easy and too common. There is no doubt the diversity of state laws on the subject constitutes a positive evil. Gov. Pennypacker's conference may not serve to cure it, by securing uniform laws at once, but it will surely bring the desired end nearer. It is a good work and Pennsylvania may be proud of taking this practical step toward its accomplishment.

British Health Congress.

Over in England, last week, they had a "health congress." It was not divided into a house and senate, but partook principally of senatorial characteristics as exemplified in Washington. Everybody was permitted to talk as long as they liked, about what they pleased and no votes were taken. The proceedings were rather more entertaining than those of the senate, probably because of greater variety of subjects. These ranged from the age of man to the evils of pathogenic germs and the barbarity of trousers.

It was Col. Fox of the London board of education who attacked the garb of the modern male citizen. Clothes, he declared, are tight where they ought to be loose and loose where they might be close fitting. Waistcoats, he continued, should never be worn, instead of tight coats we should have loose sacks, no man ought to wear a cap and trousers are an abomination. Some relief was naturally felt by the distinguished persons assembled when the colonel described a garment for the nether limbs, tight at the ankle, loose and flowing above. Some fears had been entertained that he might advocate the kilt and a very short stocking.

It is just possible a man might live long and enjoy health in the costume prescribed by Col. Fox. At the least he would have ample room for pockets. It is quite another question whether he would necessarily be more healthful or happy than in the regular London suit so extensively admired by J. Pierpont Morgan. He could hardly be made more useful on the principle assumed by Dr. Kenwood, who declared the children of today are so thoroughly "book learned" they are as intelligent as gramophones. Clown's trousers and baggy coats could hardly prevent the teachers from making parrots of the boys, and the absence of tight waists could hardly alter the use of books in girls' school rooms.

It must not be understood that objection is being made to the health congress. Not in the least. It ought to be good for humanity to laugh once in awhile and the proceedings offer provocation to laughter. There is little danger that any one will try to follow the rules laid down and no fatal consequences would follow if they did.

Prosperous West Virginia.

Returns of the valuation of West Virginia property for purposes of taxation indicate the tremendous material development taking place in that state. For example, McDowell county returns over $36,000,000 this year as compared with little more than $3,000,000 a year ago, an increase of 1,100 per cent. Other counties show as large actual gains though less in proportion to the total of last year. Taken in connection with the new corporation taxes these valuations should yield much larger revenues than formerly at a decreased rate of taxation.

The advance in West Virginia property values is due to the industrial development that is taking place. Coal, timber, oil, other minerals and manufactures contribute to the general total. The advance of this year over last is hardly greater than that of other recent years since the movement began, less than 20 years ago. The first great strides were made in 1889. Since then the pace has been almost continuously accelerating.

This period of industrial activity coincides with the Republicanism of the war born state. Democratic pluralities were decreasing in the early '80s. Republican pluralities have been growing during the past 15 years. As the industrial horizon of the state has broadened the people's understanding of the benefits of Republican policies has grown. Not one of the interests that have made the state great but is vitally concerned in the maintenance of sound money; many of them are dependent on the policy of protection. The connection between increasing prosperity and the increasing Republican pluralities is manifest.

Are They Necessary?

A marked copy of a paper containing the complaint of an old soldier has been received. The article inveighs against the severity of reviews at the Soldiers' Home, Dayton, O., and is sent to us by an inmate of the National Military home, Marion, Ind. The inference is fair that conditions are similar at both institutions. The complaint is that five reviews are held at Dayton every year, taxing the veterans beyond their power of endurance and that the death rate is increased thereby.

While The Gazette cannot indorse this complaint, not having intimate knowledge of the facts, it seems proper to suggest, however, that reviews in these institutions no longer serve the purpose for which they were instituted. The inmates of the soldiers' homes have mainly passed the age where they could render military service to their country. Most of them have passed the point where military discipline can be useful to them. Review has become a perfunctory ceremony, extremely trying to the enfeebled old gentlemen who are found in the national institutions for the care of veterans of the civil war. Why not discontinue them? Why not allow the aged heroes to live in peace and comfort for the few remaining years allotted to them?

The Pittsburgh Leader man explains himself in these words: "Sometimes the grafter finds it wise to howl against graft. It keeps people looking the other way."

This year's exposition at the Point will be the "best ever." It requires hard work to improve on a good thing, but that is what the exposition management does.

Mr. Wu has not changed the line of his argument since he was in this country. But he should be careful to not overstep the bounds of the solemn treaty of 1858.

That adjourned Democratic convention this week is likely to make the faithful weary. So much trouble and expense to indorse a Republican nomination.

Brother Pattison of Cincinnati is so strongly opposed to the saloons he does not propose to have his money spent in them for campaign purposes.

Secretary Taft's nomination for president in the Philippines will have to be ratified at home to make it operative.

QUIET OBSERVATIONS

By ERASMUS WILSON.

What do you drink?

As nearly as one may judge from the conditions here in the city you are compelled to patronize the saloon or drug store; there being no places where thirsty wayfarers can get a drink of water, not even plain Allegheny river water.

Yes, we have temperance people here of every brand and hue, and there are a great many water drinkers, but none of these seems to care much for the thirsty fellow on the street, not even enough to offer him a cup of cold water.

There is one drinking fountain on Smithfield street between the river and the Union station, but this break is duly atoned for by having none on Wood, Market, Liberty or Penn, nor on any of the crosstown avenues.

In fact there is no place down town where man and beast can get a drink, and there are thousands of thirsty drivers and famishing horses traveling these streets every hour of every day, and far into the night.

How is this for a Christian temperance town? Does this state of affairs argue well for the millennium that the temperance people have been promising us for so many years?

Indeed, the water drinker is most shabbily treated by his friends.

* * *

A certain amount of wind work appears to be essential to the establishment of any new enterprise or any departure from the old way of doing things.

Wind work is generally noisy and blustery, and sometimes stormy, which serves to attract the attention of people, sets them thinking, and finally to blowing some themselves.

If wind work is followed by a strong and well-defined sentiment concerning that which the blowing was about, it may be said that it was worth while. But if the furore ends in wind, as it began, then has the effort been in vain.

Sentiment is more stable than wind, and when once established it is quite certain to lead to practical results, particularly if it appeals to practical men and women.

* * *

That there has been a lot of wind work done here there can be no doubt, nor is there any doubt that it has developed a good deal of sentiment in favor of temperance, but so far it hasn't shown any sign, or at least not much, of being of the practical sort, the only sort of sentiment that is really worth while.

The wind work began along in the early '70s, when Arthur Kirk, Mr. Rabe and several other earnest, hustling fellows, manned the works. In '73 they succeeded in getting up quite a gale, but it quieted down to a mild breeze, sometimes threatening a dead calm.

In '78 Francis Murphy was brought here by Chancellor Woods. You know what a lively breeze he stirred up, and how long he kept it blowing.

* * *

Thirty odd years have passed since the Kirk campaign was in its glory, and a full score since the Murphy movement was at top speed, and yet there is not a place on the battle ground where these heroes fought so valiantly in the temperance cause, where a thirsty wayfarer, famishing horse or dog, can get a drink of river water, much less a glass of that clear, sparkling, cool water they talked about, sung about, and prayed for.

What are you going to do about it?

Shall all the good work done by so many good people be for naught? They are deserving of a more fitting remembrance than this.

What more fitting monument could be erected to their memories than drinking fountains, and what more would they ask?

* * *

The whole matter appears to be up to practical Christians—not Christian Temperance unions, but Christians, for are not all Christians temperate?

And all Christians are practical, that is, they practice what they preach, and what they believe to be right. Not all professed Christians do this, but all real Christians do.

If you are a real Christian, and believe in practical temperance, and can see that public drinking fountains would have a tendency to reduce the sum of actual intemperance, your duty is plain, for that which you see to do you are duty bound to do.

We can no longer depend on the agitators. Their work is about finished, and practical people are next in line.

* * *

Is it any wonder that worldly man regards average Christian temperance workers with suspicion when he sees they have done so little practical work? He does not take into account that wind work is really necessary before practical operations can be commenced.

This same worldly man may favor practical temperance, as most of them do, and will cheerfully support any movement that promises good results, but he does not feel called upon to lead off.

The times are certainly ripe for a practical temperance movement—one that moves along right lines and gives good results. Saloons have so long monopolized the drink business that they cannot reasonably object to the other fellows establishing a cold water station on every square.

It will not be necessary to erect a fountain beside every saloon, but there should be enough to meet all demands. Nor will these cost a fraction of what it would cost to establish the same number of saloons. Indeed the cost will be so trivial that it is hardly worth taking into account.

* * *

Don't you think that there are quite a number of men and women who will agree to erect a fountain at their own expense?

Or if each church would erect one in a public place the demand would almost be met. Or the Masons, Odd Fellows, Templars, Good Templars and public schools might supply the demand without being made any poorer, if not with a certainty of being made all the richer, for such an act would show to the good people everywhere that they practice what they profess.

Here is a great chance for true philanthropists to show their hands.

TALKED OF IN GOTHAM

By FRANK A. PARKER.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The "shore resorts" are having all sorts of trouble this year. First there was the rush to the mountains that left the seaside metaphorically high and dry on the shoals of possible financial ruin. Never before had there been such a lack of summer boarders on Long Island and at the nearby Jersey resorts. It looked as though New Yorkers had just begun to realize the beauties of the atmosphere, the clear crystal lakes of fresh water and the cool atmosphere that comes in the evenings. They have the salt air all the year round, and what they seemed to want at vacation time was something different, something that was not to be found on tap at the seaside.

The cheapest place in the world to spend a vacation is on Long Island, even cheaper than in Connecticut and other New England states, where the benighted farmers are getting accustomed to the sight of an occasional $10 bill, and this cheapness recommends itself to many who have to look out for the dimes. Then there are others who wish to be able to come and go between New York and still give their families the benefit of an outing. These people have found Long Island just the proper place, and the only drawback is the languor displayed by the ordinary Long Island railroad train. But there are not enough of people so circumstanced to fill all the boarding houses of the island, and only for a few weeks was there anything like prosperous times with them.

Typhoid Strikes Serious Blow.

Now typhoid fever has come to make things uncomfortable and some of the shore resorts unprofitable. It has not yet spread very extensively, but there has been just enough of it to make people uncomfortable, to give them a feeling that bathing in the water into which New York and Brooklyn sewage is emptied is neither pleasant nor profitable. An investigation of the typhoid epidemic at Bath Beach and Bensonhurst, made by the city board of health, has developed the fact that there is neither cleanliness nor healthfulness in sea bathing under present conditions, and the board has advised people to keep out of the water that is polluted by the refuse from the city.

Bathing May Be Prohibited.

Dr. Berry, who conducted the investigation of the epidemic at these resorts, has made his report, which includes a warning against bathing in Gravesend bay. He admits that it may be necessary to issue an absolute prohibitory order. "It is impossible to indulge in this pastime," said Dr. Berry, "without getting more or less water in the mouth and nose. The entire water front from Fort Hamilton to Ulmer park is contaminated with sewage. Necessarily the water is full of germs. Bathing places close to the sewer openings should be closed and signs placed there warning people of the danger of bathing in the vicinity."

Cases Not All Reported.

There seems to be as much negligence on the part of physicians in Greater New York as in smaller places when it comes to making proper reports to the board of health. The investigation developed the fact that many cases of typhoid have not been reported, and a house-to-house canvass has been resorted to to discover the extent of the epidemic. Last week's report of the board of health shows that typhoid is prevalent in all sections of the city, and yet comparatively few cases have been discovered before death certificates have come in. Nearly all the cases so far investigated have been traced to bathing in Gravesend bay, but there are other sources of contagion, and the health department has been trying to discover them.

Mostly Among the Better Class.

Most of the cases of typhoid have been discovered in homes of the better class, rather than among the poor, who have not all the facilities for cleanliness. There is a possible explanation for this in the fact that when the people of the tenements are taken sick, they are quickly removed to the hospitals in order that they may have the nursing and care that they cannot hope to have if they remain at home. By far the greatest number of cases are found in Brooklyn, in the lower sections. During the past week 67 new cases were reported in that borough, but only six deaths. Many cases are found in the suburbs, where wells and cisterns are used, and these are believed to be largely to blame.

Coney's Latest Trouble.

Coney Island people are getting a little "pernikity" lately. They object to young women tripping gaily about the streets in bathing costumes—at least some of them object. Ever since Coney Island was, there has been a lack of formality and restraint about the people who have gathered there. Bathing suits have been considered quite proper garments for every day, and even evening wear, there. In most of the restaurants and boarding houses there was no objection to bathers sitting down to meals in their dripping garments. But a change has come, and Magistrate Vorhees has even issued a judicial opinion from the bench that a few more clothes would be an improvement.

SOME GOOD STORIES

The Meanest Rich Man.

Speaker Cannon, at a dinner he attended in Washington some time ago, talked about mean rich men.

"The meanest rich man in Illinois," he said, "lives in Vermillion county. He is a bachelor and we'll call him Crust.

"One day the superintendent of the local cemetery told his salesman to call on Crust and see if he couldn't work off a cemetery lot on him.

"The salesman set out with a hopeless air, and in a half hour he was back again.

"'No go,' he said.

"'Couldn't get him, eh?' said the superintendent.

"'No,' said the salesman. 'He admitted that I reasoned well and that the lots were fine ones, but he said that if he bought one he might not get the value of his money in the end.'

"'Why,' said the superintendent, 'there's no fear of that. The man will die some day, won't he?'

"'Yes,' said the salesman, 'but he says he might be lost at sea.'"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Saved a Little Gin.

"It may be that the average negro is ignorant," says Representative Moon of Tennessee, "but I had one in my employ who was one of the shrewdest fellows I ever ran across.

"Jim, for that was his name, was a good negro, but he loved gin better than he did his Maker, and he would not pay a debt if there was any earthly way to get out of it. One day Jim went to the store, armed with a gallon jug, and asked for a quart of gin, telling the merchant that he was prepared to settle. The fluid was put in, and then it was discovered that Jim had no money. Forthwith the merchant poured the quart back in the measure, while Jim picked up his jug and walked out smiling.

"He had put in about a quart of water, and, of course, he had just that much gin and water in the jug. The grocer's gin in his barrel was a little weaker, but Jim's quart was strong enough to bridge over on."—Minneapolis Tribune.

The Lieutenant's Promotion.

John Burroughs, the poet-naturalist, insists that animals have no reasoning powers. In order to match the contrary argument, he tells this story: "A young lieutenant, during an African campaign, came one day upon a badly crippled lion. The great brute limped over the tawny sand on three paws, holding its fourth paw in the air. And every now and then, with a kind of groan, it would pause and lick the injured paw piteously. When the lion saw the young lieutenant it came slowly toward him. He stood his ground, rifle in hand. But the beast meant no harm. It drew close to him; it rubbed against him with soft feline purrs; it extended its hurt paw. The lieutenant examined the paw and found that there was a large thorn in it. He extracted the thorn, the lion roaring with pain, and he bound up the wound with his handkerchief. Then, with every manifestation of relief and gratitude, the animal withdrew. But it remembered its benefactor. It was grateful. And in a practical way it rewarded the young man. This lion ran over the regiment's list of officers, and ate all who were the lieutenant's superiors in rank. Thus, in a few weeks, the young man, thanks to the astute animal, became a colonel!"

Pittsburgh Not the Only Sufferer.

Pittsburgh is proposing to have the next legislature enact a lot of reforms which it thinks will be improving. It wants something done to reform the magistrates' courts, among other things. Magistrates, being selected by the political bosses, are not fit for their duties; they know nothing about law; they take orders and make justice a joke, and it is alleged they do not pay over all their fees to the public treasury. All this is pretty bad, but it only shows that things in Pittsburgh are not so very peculiar. There are other places with magistrates who are ignorant and dishonest and make a farce of justice. The system in general is pretty bad, but it cannot be reformed short of a change in the constitution of the state.—Philadelphia Press.

"The Good Old Times."

Henry Watterson refers to "the once famous but now forgotten Corvode-report" for confirmation of his contention that all parties tend to become corrupt with long continuance of power. The allusion has its cheering aspects, however. After making due allowance for partisan rancor, it is evident from the report that the political morals of the country have not been growing worse since "the good old times" of 1857-60. Buchanan and his associates who were maneuvering for the Kansas bills stopped at nothing.—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Reasonable Exaction.

The Japanese peace envoys speak with exceeding frankness of the motive and policy of their government. They expect much the same relation to China that the United States has to Latin America. Why not? Japan has earned her place among the powers, as we did by our wars of the revolution and 1812. Then we published the declaration that any further extension of European monarchical institutions in this hemisphere would be regarded as unfriendly to us.—San Francisco Call.

First Step Well-Taken.

The peace conference may or may not result in peace, but whatever that issue may be, the momentous problem of etiquette as to the order of precedence in which the Japanese and Russian plenipotentiaries should be received at Oyster Bay was safely solved without upsetting the equilibrium of the principalities and powers of the earth. That much is secure.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Its Hopeless Task.

If the Democratic Pittsburgh Post could succeed in its apparent effort to show that Judge John Stewart is not a Republican it would deprive its party's state convention of all the merit it expects from nominating him.—Philadelphia Press.

More Dreadful Than War.

A Pittsburgh man has invented a machine that will make 40 pies a minute. Peace hath her victories no less dreadful than those of war.—Kansas City Journal.

What Eagle's Scream Does.

The scream of the eagle on the dollar is the hallelujah music that sets the world dancing.—Atlanta Constitution.

Kansas Still to the Fore.

It remained for a Kansas paper to announce that a prominent citizen had "resigned from his wife."—Washington Post.

FAITH IN DAD.

Some boys call their dads papa.
Oh, gee! That makes me mad
It sounds so stiff and like a book—
You bet I call mine dad.

And he's a ripper, too, you bet.
The boys all wish they had
A father that would laugh and joke
And love them like my dad.

Of course, sometimes, when all the bills
Come in, he's mighty mad.
And then we sit as still as mice
And hear him paw, poor dad.

It's always over soon, and then
You bet we all feel glad.
And then we all climb on his lap
And hug and kiss our dad.

"You can't have kids and money, too,"
He says, and so he's glad
The good Lord made him poor, or else
He mightn't be our dad.

I don't want to be president,
Like every little tad
When I am grown up I'd rather be
A fellow just like dad.

—Lippincott's Magazine.

PICKED UP IN LOBBIES

Eureka! He is Found!

Hats off, please! The star automobile enthusiast has been discovered. All other competitors have been disqualified and W. J. E. Moore of Allegheny takes first, second and third money. Dr. Moore left on the St. Louis limited out of Union station last night for the metropolis of Alcoholia, Ill., for the sole purpose of getting a "knuckle" for his automobile. Alcoholia is such an exclusive place that it takes two nights and three days to get there via St. Louis. Several days ago a traveling salesman told Dr. Moore, in a spirit of confidence, that a "knuckle" was being manufactured in Alcoholia, which, when attached to the rear axle of a car, works wonders as a brake. It would stop an auto from climbing a tree and shying at saloon signs. Dr. Moore tried to buy a "knuckle" from every dealer in town, but they are too good to sell. So he's gone after one himself. Incidentally he took a 150-mile spin through Mercer, Kittanning and Freeport yesterday to get in trim for his trip after the "knuckle."

He's Learning How.

Alderman Stephen J. Toole was an interesting spectator in front of the gates in the Union station car sheds last night. Asked where he was going he said:

"Three in about an hour."

The alderman explained that he starts on his vacation next Sunday night, and was taking a few lessons how to hop on and off cars and carry his luggage.

Convention Delegates Arrive.

A delegation of 40 representatives to the national convention of the Patternmakers' league of North America, which opens a one-week session in the St. Charles hotel this morning, arrived last night. About 250 delegates from all sections of the country are expected. President James Wilson of New York was among the arrivals last night, and stated that several important amendments to the constitution would be considered. Among them will be a proposition to increase the dues to 50 cents or more a week, which will make the dues the heaviest of any labor organization in the country. A defense fund is also to be established. The last convention was held in Chicago in 1901.

Scotchmen Evacuate.

Thomas Anderson and Alexander Blackall of Pittsburgh, James King of Allegheny, John Kerr of McKeesport, William Shannon of East Pittsburgh and David Lyons of Homestead left Union station for New York last night as delegates to the convention of Scottish clans of the United States and Canada, which opens in that city today. A large delegation of local Scotchmen escorted them to the train.

+ + +

Goes to Seek Health.

Bruce W. Dyer, superintendent of the Pittsburgh division of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, who has been seriously ill with symptoms of typhoid fever, left last night for the Thousand Islands to seek recreation and recuperation.

They All Had Swords.

A concentrated attack by an army of 12 Wilkesbarreans upon the dining room of the Seventh Avenue hotel yesterday morning proved a complete victory for the invaders. They carried everything before them. The names of a dozen men from that town appeared on the hotel register last night. When asked what sort of a delegation it was, the clerk replied:

"I don't know. They all had swords and wanted breakfast, and—they got it and left."

No More for Him.

Private George J. Twigg, erstwhile of the Sixth battalion, United States marines, was anxiously awaiting a train to Cleveland in Union station last night. He has just returned from the Philippines, where he served with several Pittsburghers, but was compelled to go to Norfolk before returning home to get his discharge and incidentally relieve the paymaster of his back pay. He says he won't re-enlist, as military life has lost its fascination, although he admits that he hasn't followed the Taggart trial.

He Has the Training.

J. J. Loftus of Salt Lake City, Utah, stopped over at the Hotel Duquesne yesterday en route to Panama, where he will take up an important government position. Mr. Loftus declares that he has no fear of Panama climate or the natives.

"You see, I have lived among the Mormons so long," he said, "that I feel at home under almost any sort of conditions."

Kansas to the Front Again.

A sense of humor and a delicate compliment was that of a Helton boy who was lying in a hospital. The pretty nurse overheard him exclaim: "Oh, my Lord!" Wishing to rebuke him kindly, she came to his bedside and said: "I think that I heard you call upon the name of the Lord. I am one of His daughters. Is there anything I can do for you?" He looked up into her lovely face and with every mark of respect and admiration remarked: "Yes; ask Him how He would like me for a son-in-law."—Hoyton (Kas.) Recorder.

An Awakening Reality.

History is indeed being made rapidly. For the first time in any epoch the representatives of an oriental and European power are meeting, after a bloody and costly war, to discuss terms of peace, and they meet as guests of the great republic of the western hemisphere. It makes one rub one's eyes to discover whether it is not a dream.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Jarndyce vs. Jarndyce.

Two wealthy Pittsburgh families have gone to law over a game rooster that is owned by one of them and has disturbed the other by early morning crowing. If they don't watch out they may not have enough left when the lawyers get through with them to buy gifts for their daughters.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Mortgage as a Stimulation.

The story that Kansas farmers are becoming gouty and dyspeptic from high living and want of exercise contains a useful moral. A mortgage on the farm may cause one more anxiety than money in the bank, but it is a great blood circulator, just the same.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Three thousand Filipinos insisted on shaking hands with Secretary Taft after that official Manila dinner. If a case of swelled hand should result it will not be aggravated by a case of swelled head.—Cincinnati Commercial.

Moribund, but Refuses to Die.

The obstinacy with which Mr. Bryan refuses to furnish the corpse for his own political funeral may retard the obsequies several years yet.—Chicago Tribune.

Well, He Would Make a Good One.

MAY BE NO EXTRA SESSION CALLED

President Roosevelt Undecided on Question of Summoning Congress in the Fall.

MAY CHANGE SOUTHERN TRIP

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Aug. 13.—Notwithstanding the more or less definite announcements which have emanated from various sources during the last few months, congress may not be called into extra session next November. Indeed, the indications are now that no extraordinary session will be held this year.

This statement is made on the authority of President Roosevelt himself. He has not decided the question definitely yet, and probably will not reach a determination of it until he shall have returned to Washington the latter part of September. The chances of an extraordinary session appear, however, to be fading.

Strong pressure is being brought to bear upon the president to induce him not to call an extra session. So much interest has been manifest in the subject throughout the country that the president has received a large number of letters regarding it. Many senators and representatives have urged against an extra session. They point out that practically nothing will be gained by an extra session that will begin not more than three weeks before the opening of the regular long session, and that it will cause some inconvenience to many members of congress in both branches. Taking these things into consideration, the president has reserved a definite decision of the matter, the chances, as noted, being that the session will not be called.

Last spring it was the president's idea to issue at the proper time a call for an extra session of congress to be held in October for the purpose of enacting, if possible, railroad rate legislation. Incidentally it was expected that some recommendations might be made by the president regarding proposed changes in the existing tariff law.

The idea of an October session finally was abandoned and subsequently the president made arrangements for a two-weeks' trip through the south, beginning on the 17th of October. It then was announced that the proposed extraordinary session would not be held until after the November elections.

If finally the president should decide to call congress together the session will begin on the first Monday after the November elections, which will be just three weeks before the beginning of the regular session in December.

In this connection it can be said to be not unlikely, in view of the prevalence of yellow fever in New Orleans, that the president may conclude to make his trip through the south in two sections, visiting the Atlantic coast states in October and Louisiana, Arkansas and perhaps Tennessee on another trip to be made later. No definite arrangements to this end have been completed, but the matter is being considered.

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, who returned yesterday from a three months' European trip, and was a guest of the president last night at Sagamore Hill, left today for New York, whence he expected to go directly to his home at Nahant, Mass.

"My visit to the president at this time," said Senator Lodge, "was of no significance whatever. It was purely a personal visit."

Being a member of the senate committee on foreign relations, the senator in his sojourn abroad manifested a natural interest in the attitude of European powers toward the United States. He found everywhere in Great Britain and in France evidence of a particularly cordial feeling both in official circles and among the people for America, and that President Roosevelt is held by Europeans in general in high regard.

The hope, Senator Lodge said, was expressed everywhere that the negotiations initiated by the president for peace in the far east would be successful, but he noted that the feeling that peace would be the outcome of the present conference was not optimistic.

"While I hope most profoundly, not only in the interest of the two belligerent nations, but also in the interest of the entire civilized world," said Senator Lodge, "that a treaty of peace may be negotiated at Portsmouth, I really know nothing of the situation. For a week I have not read the newspapers, and in my conversation with the president we touched on the subject of the conference only incidentally and generally."

President Roosevelt and his family attended morning services as usual today at Christ Episcopal church. He received no visitors during the day.

DEMOCRATS REFUSE TO COMPETE IN SOUTH

Civil Service Commissioner Promises Candidates Equal Chance in All States.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—A recent examination made by Commissioner Greene of the United States civil service commission in the internal revenue service in North Carolina, Tennessee and Kentucky reveals, he says, the fact that those who are not Republicans refuse almost without exception to take the civil service examinations in those states.

He attributes this to a general conviction there that the federal offices belong to the dominant political party. In the Danville (Ky.) district, out of 173 persons who are known to have taken the examinations since the inauguration of McKinley in 1897, only two were Democrats. Commenting upon the fact Mr. Greene said:

"In other sections of the country a different state of things prevails. Thus in Philadelphia it was found that over one-third of those who passed the examinations in the postoffice for a given year were not Republicans. Under the ruling made by President Roosevelt in that case, and within the language of the civil service rules, discrimination among those who have passed is prohibited, and in practice systematic discrimination is impossible.

"If, however, there is that general participation in Kentucky, Tennessee and North Carolina which prevails in other states, the civil service commission will undertake to see that appointments are made in the classified service without regard to the politics of eligibles."

Small Downtown Fire.

An alarm was turned in at 6:50 o'clock last evening for a fire in the warehouse in the rear of the store of J. A. Elliott at 445 Liberty street. The firemen extinguished the blaze with a chemical engine, the damage from fire and water amounting to about $500.

Boy Steps Into Boiling Water.

Louis Panlop, aged 15, of Etna, was badly scalded about the feet yesterday in the Spang-Chalfant company's mill while at work. The boy stepped into a pail of boiling water. He was taken to the Allegheny General hospital.

Apple Pickers in Trouble.

Dominic Laffelluck and Andrew Musandy of Ridge street, Etna, were arrested in Highland park yesterday for pulling apples off a tree.

SAFE TOO MUCH FOR JAPANESE

Peace Envoys Unable to Solve the Mystery of a Combination Lock.

BACK TO THE BUREAU DRAWER

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

NEW CASTLE, N. H., Aug. 13.—This is a story of the wily Japanese and a big steel safe with a complicated combination lock.

When the peace negotiations reached the documentary stage, Baron Komura and Minister Takahira decided a strong steel safe was none too good for the precious papers of the Japanese government. Accordingly one of the secretaries of the commission was sent to town and a safe was purchased. This was set up in the apartments of the Japanese envoys, and "Mr. So-and-So" of the firm went over to the hotel to explain to the commissioners the complications of the lock. After going through with the operation several times, by way of illustration, Baron Komura allowed he and his colleagues could manage the affair, the papers were locked up, and the expert went back to town.

Immediately after there was some vigorous telephoning between the Japanese quarters and Portsmouth, the reason thereof being the inability of the envoys to open the safe. The combination would not work and they could not get at their documents. Another demonstration by "our Mr." and still the Japanese could not manage it. Finally, with much gesture and many exclamations, the envoys ordered the thing back to town and gladly paid all expenses for being rid of it. They are now content with the bureau drawer.

Commander Takeshita, naval attache of the Japanese commission, is the social hero of the commission. He has been presented with a mosquito headgear and wears it with great effect.

None of the diplomats care for sea bathing, for which there are the best of facilities here. Automobiling seems to be their fad, while a few of them take walks along the shores for exercise. M. Witte and Baron de Rosen like to have their machine speeded up to the limit, and always create a small sensation when they dash to or from the hotel.

Among the visitors at the peace conference headquarters today were Will Carleton, the poet, and Ben T. Cable of Chicago.

There was much consternation today among the correspondents when Baron Rosen was seen to go twice to the long-distance telephone booth. It soon developed it was a matter domestic and not international. He first telephoned the baroness at Magnolia that he would dine with her this evening, and later that he could not.

SCHWAB WILL NOT VISIT RUSSIA ON EUROPEAN TRIP

Charles M. Schwab, who will sail for Europe tomorrow, will not visit Russia on this trip. While he stood on the platform of the Pennsylvania railroad station at Braddock last night he said he would travel through France and Germany on the dual errand of business and pleasure, but that he had nothing in his marine building plans which would necessitate visiting the land of the czar.

Mr. Schwab was in Braddock yesterday attending the funeral of his brother-in-law, Thomas M. Wagner, who died at the West Penn hospital on Friday. The funeral services were held at the residence of Mrs. Mary B. Kinsey yesterday afternoon by the Rev. A. B. Stengel, rector of St. Mary's Protestant Episcopal church of Braddock. The interment was made in the Braddock cemetery.

Mr. Schwab came to Braddock from Atlantic City and was accompanied by Mrs. Schwab and several members of his family. In the morning he paid a visit to A. J. Spigelmire, a Braddock merchant in whose store he and the late Mr. Wagner worked when young men for salaries of $12 a week. He returned to New York with his party in his private car last night.

TENDERS RESIGNATION.

Dr. H. S. Jordan of New Castle Will Accept Call to San Diego, California.

NEW CASTLE, PA., Aug. 13.—(Special.)—The Rev. Dr. Henry S. Jordan, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of this city, announced at this morning's services that he had received a call from the First Presbyterian church of San Diego, Cal., and that he wished to resign.

The resignation came as a surprise, and a congregational meeting will be held this week, at which Dr. Jordan will be requested to withdraw his resignation and remain here. The First Presbyterian church is one of the largest and wealthiest in this city, and Dr. Jordan is popular with his congregation. He spent a month in San Diego this summer and preached several sermons.

WELCOME FROM A PULPIT FOR RUSSIAN DIPLOMATS

M. Witte and Baron Rosen Attend Christ Episcopal Church in Old Portsmouth—Impressed by the Simple But Beautiful Service.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 13.—The whole course of early Russian history must have passed like a panorama through the mind of M. Witte as he sat with Baron Rosen in the beautiful Christ Episcopal church of the old town of Portsmouth. It was a quiet morning of ideal Sabbath sanctity. The service, in its compelling simplicity and beauty, must have vividly reminded the czar's plenipotentiaries of the spiritual link that relates all western peoples to each other. The pealing organ, the chanted ritual, the high notes of the surpliced boy choir above all, the procession, the priest in handsome cope, and acolytes in their dazzling scarlet-girdled robes, seemed to make a profound impression upon the Russians.

M. Witte turned to watch the circling choir in its progress, and kept it in view while it marched. The visitors bowed devoutly when prayers were offered up, and although he does not read English, the chief envoy had his hymn book open during the singing.

There were no sightseers at the church and no crowd gathered to lionize the diplomats. With a delicacy beyond praise, the rector of the church, the Rev. C. Brine, refrained from making any pre-announcement of the projected visit, and his reserve found manifestation in a comparatively small attendance.

Just before making the parish announcements for the forthcoming week Dr. Brine publicly welcomed the envoys and their aides with the words:

"Friends, we bid you welcome."

WANT CORONER REMOVED.

Arrest of Physician on a Rediculous Murder Charge Causes Him Trouble.

WHEELING, W. VA., Aug. 13.—(Special.)—Attorneys Handlan and Reymann are preparing papers to submit to the circuit court for the removal of Justice of the Peace and Coroner W. W. Rogers.

This action is the outgrowth of the magistrate's issuance of a warrant for the arrest of Dr. J. W. Kinsey last week on a charge of murdering the negro Johnson, who committed suicide seven hours after Dr. Kinsey is alleged to have struck him on the head.

FALLS IN THE STREET.

Man on His Way to a Hospital Becomes Unconscious.

David O'Brien, a brakeman on the Allegheny Valley railroad, was found yesterday afternoon in a semi-unconscious condition at Liberty avenue and Thirty-third street. He was taken to a police station, where an admission card to the West Penn hospital was found on him. It was signed by Dr. Thomas Cameron, who said that O'Brien was suffering from concussion of the brain, the result of an accident near Kensington last Friday.

O'Brien was removed to the hospital, where it was said last night his condition was critical. He is 30 years of age, married and lives at 3342 McClurg street, South Side. It is supposed that he was on the way to the hospital and fell on the street.

TAGGART THINKS HIS CASE IS WON

His Wife's Attorneys Prepare to Drag Skeleton from His Family Closet.

MINER TO GIVE TESTIMONY

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

WOOSTER, O., Aug. 13.—Both Maj. Elmore Taggart and his wife, principals in the sensational divorce case which is attracting wide attention, took advantage of the lull in the fighting today to secure a rest. Maj. Taggart left the city early this morning and spent the day with a cousin in the country, returning to Wooster late this evening. Mrs. Taggart, with her friends from Chicago and Mrs. Saffrons of Denver, rested, seeking shady spots in an effort to keep cool.

Attorneys on both sides, when asked today how much longer it will take to hear all the evidence, agreed that it would take at least 10 days more, and that the wife's side of the case will hardly be reached before Thursday.

That Col. Charles A. Miner, named as one of the co-respondents, will be here to testify is said to be certain. His testimony is expected to deal with Taggart's habits and with the charges upon which Taggart was held in prison at Fort Leavenworth. It was Col. Miner, the major's superior officer, whom Taggart declared took liberties with Mrs. Taggart. Family secrets that have not yet been touched upon are expected to come to light, showing what Mrs. Taggart did for brothers of the major when they were in trouble and ill.

It is believed by Maj. Taggart and his attorneys that the testimony thus far given shows that Mrs. Taggart was guilty of misconduct with Lieut. Risher, Clinton B. Spencer, Lieut. Fortescue, Col. Miner, Capt. Bash and William Taggart of Orrville; that she was guilty of cruelty in having him arrested on an alleged false charge and placed in prison; that she abandoned him when she believed he was on his deathbed; that she associated with people to whom he objected; that she visited an improper house, smoked cigarets, told risque stories, drank whisky and beer in the presence of children and gave beer to her boys.

With these charges proven, as they believe, and with other evidence yet to come, the plaintiff and his attorneys are positive that Maj. Taggart will secure the divorce decree asked for and that he will receive custody of his children.

BREAD STRIKE GOES ON.

Boss Bakers Break Off All the Negotiations With the Employes.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Although a tentative agreement was reached yesterday between the striking bakers and the employers, which promised speedily to end the strike, the boss bakers met today and decided to break off all negotiations and to resist the demands of the strikers to the uttermost. # BOYS OF SIXTIES AT CAMPMEETING

SERMONS BY THREE VETERANS

Sin was denounced in scathing words, the Lord was praised by thousands of exultant voices and the deeds of the old soldiers were eulogized in a simple but touching tribute at the Tarentum campmeeting services yesterday. It was Veterans' day and Grand Army men and their families from all parts of Allegheny county were there to listen to three eloquent sermons preached by a trio of ministers who, 40 years ago, wore union blue on southern battlefields. Nearly 5,000 people attended the meeting and the enthusiasm of the worshipers characterized the gathering as marking a revival in open-air religious services.

It was an inspiring scene in the woods on the banks of Bull creek, where four generations assembled to sing and pray. The sunbeams stole through the branches of the oaks and maples, and fantastic figures of gold danced on the old, black, moss-covered roof of the platform where the congregation was gathered. Half the people could not find seats on the creaking pews, and hundreds were squatted on camp stools and on stumps and logs around the low eaves of the shed. When the congregation joined in a good, old-fashioned Methodist hymn those in the sylvan "amen corners" beyond the roof took up the familiar songs with no lack of spirit. When the singers had ceased and laid aside their hymnals, the feathered choristers in the trees took up the sweet notes of those immortal melodies, which at the same time came back in the echoes—like a responsive chant from a choir invisible.

No New-Fangled Ideas.

No new-fangled ideas were introduced into yesterday's service. There were no wrestling with theological problems—no introduction of new dogmas. In the audience were men who have attended campmeetings for half a century. The old-fashioned service was planned for their especial benefit and when they had responded to the invitation in such generous numbers, everything reverted back to old times. They sang "America" until the hills rang, and the male quartet led in "The Rock of Ages." A gray-haired man here and there who wore the bronze button of the veteran and recalled the days when he tented on the old camp ground, hummed a "Hallelujah," but the new tunes—there was none.

'Squire R. S. P. McCall of Tarentum, chairman of the Grand Army day committee, had planned to get all his old wartime comrades together and to have three sermons preached to them by men who distinguished themselves as soldiers before they donned the cloth. The Rev. Dr. T. N. Boyle, the Rev. J. B. Starkey and the Rev. C. W. Grannis consented to attend. Dr. Boyle was captain of Company H, One Hundred and Fortieth regiment, Pennsylvania volunteers. Mr. Starkey fought with the Twelfth Wisconsin, and Mr. Grannis was a soldier in the One Hundred and Ninety-Second Pennsylvania regiment.

The Rev. C. M. Miller, pastor of the Tarentum Methodist Episcopal church, has charge of the campmeeting arrangements. Mr. Miller was considerably below fighting age in the days of the Civil war, but now everybody knows him as the "Fighting Chaplain" of the Fourteenth regiment, National Guard of Pennsylvania, who is invincible in driving temptation out of camp when the guardsmen take their summer bivouac.

Old Satan Put Behind.

So yesterday everybody called everybody else "comrade" instead of using that good Methodist salutation, "brother" and "sister." Everybody "put old Satan behind" and all gathered on the platform or around it. Three services were held, and they were each an inspiration.

The old soldiers came on early trains, and 300 vehicles were used in transporting them and their friends and their friends' friends to the camp ground. At 10:30 o'clock in the morning the first service was held, and Dr. Boyle preached. It was a glorious day and the enthusiasm of his flock manifested by exultant singing and deep-toned responses, put the veteran pastor in fine fettle. He preached a patriotic sermon from a patriotic text. He said in part:

> We should remember that the dominant cause of the destruction of the old nations was the reproach that fell on them because they had sinned. Israel, when she was righteous, was strong enough to defy the allied powers that were about her, but when she sinned she was shorn of her strength. All nations that have gone down were dashed upon this course.
> With the great prosperity that has come to us, we are in danger of forgetting God and becoming indifferent to the requirements of the divine law. Let us not deceive ourselves.

God's Clock Is Eternity.

God's clock is not an eight-day machine. It has eternity for its dial, and time is but a single swing of its pendulum.

A great statesman, stirred by his conviction of the sin of his nation, declared: "I tremble for my country when I remember that God's justice will not sleep forever." If you want to safeguard the nation, add your part to the invincible fortification by a pure life—pure at home, pure in the business mart, pure in the workshop, pure in your profession and pure in politics.

In the emergency that is on us today, strike from the ticket when voting the name of the man who even winks at grafting. In the emergency that was on us we proved that we not only had men to wisely plan and men gifted with military genius to lead, but that we had a nation of patriots to heed the summons to do battle, and we could come out of the conflict with every stripe and star in our flag, and with a government strong enough to command the respect of the world.

Comrade Starkey prefaced his sermon in the afternoon with a talk about the old soldier. This was longer than the part of his discourse which followed his text. He said:

> You people who kick about the old soldier should ask yourselves what sort of a country we would have if it were not for them. What would you be doing now if the Johnnies had won? You would have a southern confederacy, a California confederacy, a New England confederacy, and perhaps, an Allegheny county confederacy.

Fighting the Good Fight.

> But we followed Paul's advice. We fought a good fight and now are rewarded by having a great and glorious land. We invite all our friends from across the sea to come and join us. We call Englishman, German, Scotchman, Irishman, Russian, Japanese, Italian and Hungarian—all are invited. We want them to come and share the liberties which we achieved in '78 and ordained anew in the 60s. Let them come and stay and learn to be good citizens. Otherwise keep them away—these are some of the reasons why we 'fought the good fight.'"

At the close of the morning service it was announced that all the old soldiers should immediately fall in for mess call. The moment the benediction was pronounced the deacon comrades rushed to the lower end of the grove and gathered around the commissary cottage. The visitors and their friends gathered at the tables.

Then 'Squire McCall and his commissary sergeants came forth with great steaming pots of coffee, generous platters of baked beans, toothsome buns and butter and ham sandwiches. Everybody ate his fill and then the comrades gathered in the shade to "swap" war stories and tales of campmeetings in other days.

In the afternoon the crowd was augmented by more than 1,000 people from the countryside. There were pretty girls from the farms and villages of four counties—rosy-cheeked girls from Butler, fair-haired lassies from Armstrong, blue-eyed maidens from Westmoreland, with girls in white gowns from Harrison township, girls with red parasols from Fawn and girls without hats from East Deer.

Pretty Girls Are Legion.

For a while it was hard to distinguish the gathering from a county fair, but when the hymns were announced and they began to sing—hallelujah! True it is that there were a few backsliders who stayed in the buggies and spooned in the shade of the trees upon the hill beyond the "circle," where they couldn't hear amens, but they did not escape. Chaplain Miller saw them and when the service on the platform was concluded the preachers and the deacons with the choir started straight for the top of the hill and held an overflow meeting, which no recreant soul could avoid.

There was another mess call at sunset and the scenes at noon were repeated. Then the coal oil lamps were trimmed, but the light was scarcely needed, for the moon came out in all the glory of harvest time. The worshipers gathered to hear Comrade Grannis, who also talked of patriotic things that again made the hearts of the old boys glad.

The success of the campmeeting at Tarentum is largely due to its aggressive management. 'Squire McCall recalls that he first attended a campmeeting service there in the summer of 1850. In 1855 he and James M. Kier erected the first cottages in the grove. After the war the great religious revival which swept over the country caused the meetings at the Tarentum camp ground to be attended sometimes by 10,000 persons at a Sunday service. In 1876 fire destroyed the cottages, but they were promptly rebuilt. This summer 50 are occupied, and it is a happy rustic community. W. J. Sterling is president of the Camp Ground association. The other officers are: J. L. Shook, treasurer, and F. A. Ready, secretary. Chaplain Miller has charge of the work this season.

FAMOUS CHURCH HOLDS REUNION

Mother of Presbyterianism in the West Gathers Old Folks Back Again.

HYMNS LINED OUT ONCE MORE

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

IRWIN, PA., Aug. 13.—Unique and impressive services were held today at the old Long Run church, the mother of the Presbyterian churches in the United States west of the Allegheny mountains.

The occasion was old folks' day, and it brought hundreds from all parts of Allegheny and Westmoreland counties. They came in all sorts of conveyances, and brought with them well-filled lunch baskets.

There were two services, morning and afternoon. The former was an old-fashioned one, with old-time hymns, repeated line by line by Pastor Oliver, as in the days when there were but few hymn books. The pastor had with him in the pulpit Chancellor S. B. McCormick of the Western University of Pennsylvania, President S. B. Linhart of Blairsville college, the Rev. E. M. Bowman of Hollidaysburg, the Rev. G. A. Sowash, missionary to the Soudan, and the Rev. W. C. Kuhn of Pittsburgh. Dr. McCormick read the Scripture lesson and prayer was offered by the Rev. Mr. Bowman.

The Rev. J. C. Oliver, pastor of the church, preached the sermon. As an introduction, he said that churches held children's day services, and that what could be, therefore, more fitting than to hold an old folks' day in the autumn. He took for his text the fifth commandment, "Honor thy father and thy mother."

During his talk he said that in the congregation there were eight over 80 years of age, four over 70 and 22 over 60. The eldest is Miss Jane Hartford of Swissvale, 86 years of age, who has been blind for 82 years.

After the sermon addresses were made by the Rev. Mr. Bowman and the Rev. Mr. Sowash. At noon the throng ate lunch on the grounds.

The principal afternoon address was made by former Congressman Edward E. Robbins of Greensburg. His speech was historical. The old Long Run church was organized in 1781, and the first building was of logs. William Swan was the first pastor. He was called in 1793, at $300 a year. Calling attention to the fact that the church was two years old when the treaty of Paris was signed acknowledging the independence of the United States, Mr. Robbins referred to the old Long Run cemetery, where sleep men who carried arms for this country in the revolutionary war, in the war of 1812 and in the civil war. The speaker also took up the subject of graft, insurance and political scandals, and said that there was no fear but that all would be righted with our Christianity and our free press. He finished by reciting Kipling's "Recessional."

Chancellor McCormick followed with a short address. President S. B. Linhart of Blairsville, the Rev. W. C. Kuhn and J. M. Brown of the church also spoke.

After the services scores visited the old cemetery. Dates on gravestones go back to 1790. It was announced that the Long Run Cemetery association had been chartered through the efforts of Mr. Robbins and a fund created to keep up the old place in perpetuity.

CAR BUILDERS TO FORM A COMBINE

Philadelphia's Great Hotel Is Chartered by Companies Interested in It.

TO INCLUDE MANY CONCERNS

The Pittsburgh Gazette Bureau,
Press Building,
PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 13.

The heads of the largest firms in the country engaged in the manufacture of trolley cars have secured rooms at the Bellevue-Stratford for the second week in September for a convention that is looked forward to with deep interest by business men as being the possible forerunner of one of the greatest consolidations of recent years.

J. C. McQuinton, superintendent of the Westinghouse Electric Company, and F. R. Gale, president of the Westinghouse's former bitter rival, the General Electric Company of Schenectady, have each engaged 30 rooms. The National Airbrake Company has 30 rooms, and dozens of firms that appear as competitive bidders in making the body of trolley cars are nestling down in adjoining apartments, in engaging which demands have been made that "they must adjoin those of some other firm."

Members of the J. G. Brill Company of this city, one of the largest manufacturers of car bodies in the world, decline to discuss consolidation rumors, but it is an open secret that members of this firm have had numerous conferences during the last six months with representatives of other car concerns, and that by absorbing works at St. Louis and Elizabethport, a beginning at last has been made toward a general consolidation. Many now believe the time is ripe for a still closer agreement and this will be one of the subjects brought up before this meeting of the leaders who compose what is known as the American Street Railway Association.

Financiers doubt if the time has yet come for an all-around consolidation, although its possibilities are admitted. A consolidation of the makers of car bodies is, however, believed to be one of the possibilities of the September meeting, together with a closer understanding between the two great electrical companies that will admit of future development.

Unknown Steps to Death.

BLIND, HALT AND LAME FALLS AN EASY VICTIM

County Detectives Raid Speakeasy, Capture Cripple, Let Able-Bodied Get Away.

District Attorney R. E. Stewart yesterday detailed six of his county detectives to go to Sturgeon and raid an alleged speakeasy there. The officers closed in on the place and there were 21 men within the house. Twenty of these escaped and the only person arrested by the brawny officers of the law was Nicholas Schadron, who is without legs, and has but one eye and one arm.

The prisoner said at the jail he was unable to escape. He was committed by Justice of the Peace R. D. Allison, and was charged with selling liquor without a license and selling on Sunday. The prisoner told the jail officers it was amusing to watch his able-bodied companions evade the county detectives. The officers were seen approaching the place and the imbibers started to leave. All succeeded in getting away but Schadron, who was unable to help himself.

However, the officers were too much enraged to let Schadron go, though he denied having anything to do with the place except as a visitor. He was placed in a carriage and taken to the railroad station and brought to jail.

BEATEN TO DEATH IN NAVAL PRIZE FIGHT

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—After a prize fight on board the converted cruiser Yankee, which was refereed by a lieutenant of the United States navy, off Monte Cristo, Santo Domingo, on July 6, Harry Cohen, a coal passer on the Yankee, died as the result of the punishment he had received. Charles Johnson, a negro coal passer on the Olympia, Cohen's opponent, was acquitted by a court of inquiry, which rendered a verdict of "accidental death."

Boxing and all other athletic sports are encouraged by the officers of the navy as it prevents the men from becoming restless and homesick on a long cruise.

Johnson was the best middleweight on the Olympia and Cohen had defeated all the men of his class on the Yankee. Rivalry between the men led to a 10-round bout for a prize of $50. The ring was built on the after deck of the Yankee and Lieut. George T. Pettengill of the cruiser Denver was the referee.

Johnson weighed about 145 pounds, while Cohen was seven or eight pounds lighter.

After the first round it was apparent that Johnson had Cohen at his mercy. Cohen took a count of seven or eight several times, and when he got to his feet Johnson would not strike, but waited for him to make the attack.

In the eighth round Cohen, without being struck a blow, sank to the floor, while Lieut. Pettengill counted the final 10. Cohen was unconscious and efforts of the ship's surgeon to resuscitate him were unavailing. He died the same day. An autopsy revealed that he had sustained a hemorrhage of the brain.

Healthful

Malt is a food, half digested. Hops are a tonic. Beer that is pure is good for you.

But beer that isn't aged causes biliousness. Beer that's impure is unhealthful.

That is why we insist on purity. That is why we spend fortunes every year to attain it.

YOUNG PLANS BIG TRIP

Cumberland People Intend to Take Team to Cuba Late Next Fall to Play Ball.

George Young, president of the Cumberland team, will take a team to Cuba late next fall, to play there during the winter with the All-Cubans and other clubs of the island. Young will take the pick of the Cumberland team, and it is likely he will have the cream of the talent of the other clubs in the Cumberland and George Creek league. Harry Tate will captain the outfit.

Davenport of the I. I. I. league has released Pitcher "Lefty" Smith of Pittsburgh.

Butler has signed Pitcher "Rube" Stewart, who is Bob Anderson's leading slab artist on the Turtle Creek Athletics. Butler is also negotiating with Pitcher George Bonnett of Oil City.

The Susquehanna league has disbanded, the clubs preferring to play independent ball. The Sunbury club, which is composed of players from Western Pennsylvania, won the pennant in a walk.

GREAT "UMP." IS LAIRD.

Red Calhoun Says Tri-State Has Man Not Afraid of Players.

Red Calhoun, captain and first baseman on the Harrisburg team, who is at his Allegheny home resting a sprained ankle, says the funniest umpire he ever met on the diamond is Laird, who is now working in the Tri-State. "Laird is a small chap, the largest thing about him being his heavy black mustache, but the way he goes after the players who try to make it a hard path for him to travel is laughable," declares Calhoun.

"I had a run in with him the first day he struck Harrisburg, but some of his quaint remarks made me walk away and laugh, and after that I was for him. He has the courage, and all his decisions go. One day at York he wanted to take Tom Bagley, the big first baseman on the York team, out of the field and fight, and that evening at the hotel when Bagley made some caustic remarks about his umpiring Laird invited him out on the street. Bagley is about three times as large as Laird, but he, too, laughed and made up with the 'ump.' We were playing a series in Lancaster not long ago, and I overheard the manager of the Lancaster team say to Laird:

"'You are the worst stiff I ever saw trying to work a ball game. I guess I will just throw you over the fence.'

"'Well, you have a throw coming,' was Laird's rejoiner, and the colloquy ended there, concluded Calhoun.

JOHNSON WILL FIGHT FOR "DOC" HILLEBRAND

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—(Special.)—When the national baseball committee meets in Cincinnati next Tuesday, there will be a merry war between President Johnson of the American league and Barney Dreyfuss of Pittsburgh, over the services of "Doc" Hillebrand, the famous Princeton pitcher, who signed an agreement to play with the Washington team in 1904, and then refused to join the Senators on account of alleged parental objection.

Pittsburgh wanted the Hillebrand boys badly in 1904, and a millionaire fan of the smoke town had induced President Dreyfuss to try to sign the famous college stars, but President Johnson, who was in the east at that time, slipped into Princeton ahead of the Pittsburghers and signed "Doc" Hillebrand to an agreement to play with Washington in 1904, at a salary of $3,750, and also secured from "Doc" an agreement whereby his brother Homer was also to play with the Senators. President Johnson advanced A. R. T. Hillebrand, better known as "Doc," $1,000.

About two months later "Doc" Hillebrand sent back to President Johnson from Pittsburgh a check for $1,000, saying that his parents objected to his playing professional ball, and that he would not sign a Washington contract. It is said that the rich Pittsburgh fan paid the pitcher the amount called for in his agreement with Mr. Johnson for not joining the Washington team.

Homer then signed with Pittsburgh, with which team he is playing now, parental objections to the contrary, notwithstanding.

Dan McGann was chased at St. Louis Saturday by Johnstone. It was not long after the game had started that McGann, who has been the target of more abuse and ancient vegetarian bouquets than any of the New Yorkers, was traversing a well-beaten path to the gate. Dan becomes eloquent when a decision does not harmonize with his judgment.

Umpire Johnstone said Shannon had not scooped Bresnahan's liner from the weeds. McGann said "Spike" was guilty. "Spike" was silent. He hung his head. Dan insisted, augmenting his statement with the comment that some umpires were worse than the vegetables which he has encountered. To the fence went Dan and Clarke went to first.

A Cincinnati special says: "Wee Willie" Keeler may be manager of the Cincinnati Reds next year. It has been announced that Joe Kelley, the present manager, will not handle the reins after this season and various prominent baseball men have been mentioned as his successor, including Ned Hanlon, John McGraw and others. It is known that Keeler has managerial aspirations and that he has been sounded about taking the management of the Reds.

He has been doing splendid work for the New York Americans this season, and leads the team in batting, consequently, if Owner Frank Farrell should allow him to go to Cincinnati he would demand a very big sum of money for his release, possibly more than was ever paid for a player. Keeler could also obtain a bank president's salary, for the Cincinnati club would hardly hesitate to give him any amount he asked for.

FOUR RUNS ARE SCORED ON ONE PASSED BALL

CINCINNATI, Aug. 13.—Cincinnati and Boston were to have played a double-header here this afternoon, but a heavy rainstorm that came up in the first half of the fifth inning, after two of the visitors had been retired and with the local team in the lead, prevented the carrying out of the full program. Cincinnati won the first game largely through the errors of Boston, the four runs in the fourth inning being scored on two wild throws and two bases on balls, a passed ball that rolled under the stand while the bases were full and on which Huggins was given a pass sending all the tallies across at once. Attendance 10,355. Score:

WHERE THEY'LL PLAY TODAY.

Williamsport at Altoona.
Harrisburg at Johnstown.
Lancaster at York.
Wilmington at Shamokin.

The fact that the York team, the leader, must win about five out of every six games played henceforth to win the pennant shows just what a great league the Tri-State is. President Creamer's independents are certainly making a name for themselves.

The way in which the Coatesville vacancy was handled shows the splendid organization which exists in the league.

Harrisburg wants it understood that no matter what happens, there will be a team there next season. Billy Hamilton will again be in charge.

Joe Martin of Johnstown is out with a sprained ankle, and his presence and sure fielding and hitting are missed.

Kennedy of the Altoona team has been loaned Johnstown to help out in the present crippled condition. In addition, Charles Rice of Reedsville, a one-time tryout of the Philadelphia Nationals, and for a couple of years Camden's star twirler, along with Toner, a Cotton States leaguer, are helping the team out.

Smith, second baseman, will also likely be retained by Shamokin. He played there the past two seasons on second base. He is a Bucknell college ball player and football star.

Wilmington has released Red Hinton.

Jimmy Sebring is a great addition to the Williamsport team. He is in the game at all stages, and his coaching fills a long-felt want.

Jake Magle, the new middle fielder at Altoona, will rush the heavy hitters of the league for place. He rarely misses a hit in every game, and the majority of his clouts are for extra bases. He is well up above the .325 mark, and will average almost two bases for every hit.

THREE I LEAGUE LIABLE TO ALTER ITS CIRCUIT

Talk of Shifting in Connection With Central and Iowa Organizations.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

BLOOMINGTON, ILL., Aug. 13.—With but one month remaining in the season of 1905 in the Three-I league there is growing speculation as to the future of this thriving organization. There has been considerable talk of a reorganization of the Central, Three-I and Iowa leagues, with a more even distribution of territory in order to reduce the mileage and traveling expenses. Most of this gossip has emanated from the Central league, which is handicapped by a widely extended circuit and which would be glad to reduce its mileage and make the league more compact. The Three-I members, so far as known now, are well satisfied with the present make-up of the circuit, and will oppose any change. The league has been a great success in the past four years, and with the recent addition of Peoria is now made up of the most profitable baseball towns in the two states of Illinois and Indiana.

There are numerous candidates for a franchise in case that the league is reorganized. Danville has commenced an agitation for admittance. Danville was a member five years ago, when the circuit included Indiana towns. Since then Danville has increased greatly in population, and, due to the construction of numerous interurban roads, has a much greater number of patrons of the national game. Danville, it is now believed, would prove a profitable member, and if a vacancy should be found would probably have first call among Illinois cities.

In Iowa the city of Burlington is said to favor Three-I membership in preference to the Iowa league. Burlington is situated satisfactorily from a mileage standpoint, and in case of the withdrawal of either Cedar Rapids or Dubuque, would make a desirable acquisition. Keokuk, Quincy, Aurora, Elgin and Galena would be glad to join the Three-I. Nothing has been heard from Rockford, but doubtless if there is a vacancy an application will be filed. Rockford was thrown out of the league a year ago because of lack of patronage. The enthusiasts there claim that Manager Hugh Nicol was the handicap, and that with another leader the results would be different. While this will be generally disputed, yet it is likely that Rockford may be considered in the make-up of the slate for next year.

For the past year it has been rumored that both Cedar Rapids and Dubuque were desirous of withdrawing from the Three-I and entering the Iowa. In case that Dubuque wins the pennant this year, as now seems very probably, there is small likelihood of any change. With Cedar Rapids the situation is different. For the first time in years the Rabbits have occupied a subordinate position in the race, and their ill success this season may animate them to seek other company.

Kittanning Races Tomorrow.

The Kittanning fair opens tomorrow, and the indication is that the largest attendance in the history of the fair will be out. The racing promises to be excellent. There will be four days of racing, beginning tomorrow, and from 16 to 20 horses will compete in each race. It will be the opening of the Coal Iron and Oil circuit. Kennedy will have charge of the pools.

GULF STREAM IS MAKING TROUBLE

Big Liner Has Her Speed Reduced by Force of the Current.

HEAT IS ALMOST UNBEARABLE

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Herald Building, Herald Square.
NEW YORK, Aug. 13.

That the gulf stream is active 600 miles east of this city at a point in the Atlantic ocean where, according to the best authorities, it should be hardly discernible, and with such a flow as to hold back to a serious extent the Moltke on her western way, was asserted by Capt. Ruser of that ship when she arrived at Hoboken today from Hamburg, Boulogne and Dover.

Capt. Ruser told a reporter that never before in his many trips across the western ocean had he observed the gulf stream so active, and the temperature recorded was almost phenomenal.

On Monday the midday reckoning showed 404 knots, the next day 397 knots, then 389 and 382 on the following days, and Capt. Ruser began to seek for the cause. The water suddenly began to grow warmer, and in streaks, or, as the captain stated, "like fingers," and there were high temperatures that were startling.

Coming out of water showing 14 to 19 degrees centigrade—or approximately 42 and 57 degrees Fahrenheit—the thermometer registered 28 degrees centigrade, or 80 degrees Fahrenheit. At this time the ship fell off in her speed fully a knot and a half an hour and the water took on the blue tinge so noticeable in the tropics.

For five hours, a distance of nearly 80 miles, this high temperature was recorded, and all day the peculiar activity of the gulf stream was apparent. When at noon on Friday the day's run was computed it was found that the ship had logged only 367 miles.

The weather was ideal for the voyagers, as far as smooth sea went, but the temperature on shipboard was almost unbearable, registering nearly 90 degrees.

"I have never before witnessed the gulf stream active in so high a latitude," said Capt. Ruser. "I have no theory to account for the current we met. I can remember that at one time several years ago the effect of the gulf stream was felt as far as the North cape. Then it receded, and was not heard of there for some time. If it keeps up the speed that it had when we crossed it, it will be heard of again on the other side."

MATTERS OF IMPORTANCE NOW IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Easiest Way to Follow Them Is to Keep in Touch With Paper Which Prints News.

Many matters of importance are now in the public eye. The yellow fever situation in New Orleans, the efforts of the envoys of Russia and Japan to agree upon acceptable terms of peace, the stirring incidents that are daily going on in the old world and the many events in our own country which appeal directly to those who take an interest in the news of the day, all serve to make an up-to-date newspaper of more than passing worth just now. This is particularly true of a paper which keeps always abreast of the times. This is what the Sunday Gazette always aims to do. Its correspondents are chosen because they are peculiarly fitted for some special line of work. So are its writers of features and fiction, for that matter, and yesterday's paper was a jewel, inasmuch as all of its departments were brimful of facts that were interesting. At no time during the past year has the news of the day been so closely followed. And in order to follow it in the most pleasant channels one must have the right newspaper. That, of course, is The Gazette. Here are only a few of the many items of interest which were prepared for Sunday readers:

One hundred and five new yellow fever cases were reported in New Orleans.

The Russians, despite their rejection of Japan's chief demands, consented to discuss other terms and the prospects for peace brightened.

The wife of Senator Dubois of Idaho, who is in the Philippines with the Taft party, was seriously injured in a runaway.

Anarchy prevails in Warsaw and many persons were killed in riots.

Bandits robbed an operator in a railroad tower and he ran many miles for assistance. Senator Platt's memorable fight with President Garfield is recalled by the present trouble with President Roosevelt. New York's tenderloin is to be invaded next Saturday night by prominent ministers with the famous Moody tent. The state of Pennsylvania leads the union in the value of railroad property. The smallest amount owned is in South Dakota. Maj. Taggart scored in securing the discharge of Parry Rope, whom his wife had charged with perjury. Gov. Cummins of Iowa is warming up his boom for president in 1908. Little Kanawha road will be improved to make tidewater outlet for the Lake Erie.

Wife's refusal to sign a deed for coal land leads to legal complications. Trustee denied allegations made in a suit growing out of a church dispute. Civil suit against a fire chief was ordered for a fourth trial. Dr. S. L. McCullough of Carnegie, and associates, secured charter for a railroad to open a large tract of Washington county coal land. Edgeworth jokers who favor sewers in the borough passed unique ordinances of their own. With a production of 11,163,175 tons in the first half of the present year the blast furnaces of the United States made a new record. John Kelly took carbolic acid in the street after asking his wife to return to him.

The Pirates made it two straight from the Quakers. Chandler Egan successfully defended his title by winning the golf final from D. E. Sawyer at Chicago. The Athletics won from St. Louis and retain their lead in the American league. Sysonby won the Grand Republic stakes at Saratoga. Champion Jimmy Britt and Battling Nelson have signed articles for a 50-round fight, winner to take all. Cy Seymour still holds the batting lead in the National with Wagner second.

New York stock market was active but prices closed lower. Reading made a new high record and local mining stocks were also higher. New York bank statement showed a loss in cash but a small gain in surplus reserve. Wheat was weak.

EXPORTS BREAK FORMER RECORD

Increase Is Nearly $100,000,000 Over the Statistics for Last Year.

IRON AND STEEL TAKE LEAD

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Statistics compiled by the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor show the exports of manufactures in the fiscal year ended amounted to $543,620,297, as against $452,415,921 in the preceding year, $423,851,754 in 1900, and $183,596,743 in 1895. Of manufactures, the exports for the past fiscal year were not only the largest on record, but are in excess of the combined exports of all articles in the centennial year, 1876, and nearly $140,000,000 more than the total imports and exports of the country at the close of the civil war.

The growth in the exportation of manufactures is shown to have largely exceeded the growth in population. Out of 30 leading articles, only seven show a falling off for the year as compared with 1904. Iron and steel manufactures supply about one-fourth of the total exports, having been $134,727,921, as against $111,948,386 in the preceding year. Steel rails showed an increase of $6,000,000, chiefly in shipments to Canada, South America, Mexico, the West Indies, Japan and other oriental countries. Machinery also showed an increase in 1905 of more than $6,000,000 over 1904.

Increase in Locomotives.

A conspicuous feature is the large increase in exports of locomotives to Japan, 151 engines having been sent thither in 1905, as against 74 in the previous year. Mexico and Argentina increased their purchases of American sewing machines, while Japan increased her purchases of electrical machinery and builders' hardware, each in a substantial degree. Copper manufactures take second rank with a total valuation of $86,225,291 in 1905, as compared with $57,142,081. There was an increase of $10,000,000 in the copper exports to China.

There was an increase in the exportation of mineral oils—the third article in importance—of over 100,000,000 gallons, but owing to a fall in price the value remained practically stationary. The oil export for 1905 was 951,000,000 gallons, as against 847,000,000 gallons; the value for 1905 was $71,888,317 and for 1904 was $71,758,552. To Great Britain and Ireland 221,000,000 gallons were sent, to Germany 147,000,000 gallons and to the Netherlands 117,000,000 gallons. Only 55,000,000 gallons were exported to South America.

Cotton a Striking Feature.

Cotton manufactures present one of the striking features of the year's export record, having advanced from $22,403,713 in 1904 to $49,666,080 in the year just ended. The growth occurred chiefly in cotton cloth exports, $14,696,199 being the total in 1904 and $41,320,542 the figures for 1905. To China there was an increase of about 400,000,000 yards over last year's exportation of 769,000,000 yards, and the value of our cotton cloth exports to that country increased from $4,000,000 in 1904 to $27,750,000 in 1905. Japan was the only other country to show a considerable increase, the total being 16,000,000 yards, as against 440,000 yards in 1904.

Leather and its manufactures, fourth in importance in the list of manufactured articles exported, showed an increase of $4,000,000, the total in 1905 having been $38,000,000, as compared with $34,000,000 in the preceding year. In this class also Japan is credited with the chief increase.

Other important articles exported were: Agricultural implements, $29,750,000; chemicals, drugs, dyes, etc., nearly $16,000,000; wood manufactures, $12,500,000; cars, carriages and vehicles, $10,660,000; scientific instruments, $8,000,000; paper and manufactures, $8,250,000; paraffine and paraffine wax, $750,000; fiber manufactures, $750,000; tobacco manufactures, $51,060,000; books, maps, etc., nearly $5,000,000, and India rubber manufactures, $750,000.

FEARING AN OUTBREAK.

Chinese at Soo Chow Are Adopting Threatening Attitude Toward Foreigners.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 13.—Soo Chow reports that the anti-American boycott is assuming a political character. An anti-foreign outbreak is feared. Only the northern Chinese authorities are sternly repressing the movement. The viceroy of Nanking apparently is undecided what steps to take.

Soo Chow has a population of 1,000,000, and is situated in the most populous district of China, 125 miles southeast of Nanking.

QUIET ON RIVERS.

Rise Expected Today, and Rivermen Prepare to Bring Up Packets.

Aside from the great number of people who went out for a river trip on the excursion boats, the water front was unusually quiet all day yesterday. The water is too low to allow movement of the pool boats, and the down-river packets are waiting for a rise in order to get into the Pittsburgh harbor.

The McKeesport Turners hold an excursion on the barge Beauty and the Island Queen took out a big crowd. The Francis J. Torrance also took a big crowd up the Monongahela during the afternoon. It was estimated that nearly 2,000 people took a river trip yesterday.

The officials of the Monongahela River Consolidated Coal and Coke Company are looking for a rise out of the Allegheny today. They expect about 2 feet of water and have made preparations to bring some of their empties up to Pittsburgh. The crews of the Sam Clark and Valiant will leave by rail for Marietta, O., at 7 a. m. today.

The wickets at Davis island dam were lowered yesterday morning and the packet steamer Lorena, which is aground on a small island below the dam, will probably be floated before daylight. During the afternoon the stage of water in the harbor was 9 feet.

GOES BACK TO HIS DEVIL WORSHIP

Noted Negro Missionary, Whose Death Is Reported, Has Returned to His Tribe.

TAKES UP WITH OLD BELIEFS

Herald Building, Herald Square.
NEW YORK, Aug. 13.

One of the most remarkable careers in history or romance has been ended, according to private advices just received from Freetown, East Africa, Saturday, by the death of Daniel Flickinger Wilberforce. He was educated in missionary work at great expense by the United Brethern church of this country, but took up the life of a savage tribe and became himself chief of a band of devil worshipers.

Dr. D. K. Flickinger had charge of the mission boards of the church in this and other countries nearly half a century ago, and on one of his visits to Africa he was asked to christen a male child. He gave it the name of Daniel Flickinger Wilberforce. Twelve years later he met an intelligent negro boy in the rooms of the American Mission society and found it was he whom he had christened. He had come to this country as servant for a missionary and had been turned over to the society.

Dr. Flickinger took the boy and educated him in Ohio, giving him among other instruction a course in medicine in Cleveland. Wilberforce showed promise as a missionary. Reaching manhood, he married a negress in Dayton, O., and returned with her to Africa to fulfill the purposes of the church. He came back here frequently afterward, delivering lectures and collecting money for the cause.

Not long ago, however, came an announcement that Wilberforce had joined his native tribesmen, the Furrows, a band that worships devils and contracts plural marriages, and had been made their chief. He retained that office until his death. Learning this, the church dropped him from its roll of membership. He left two sons and two daughters in this country, the former being students in Otterbein university, Westerville, O. Dr. Flickinger is still living at the age of 80 years.

DEATH ENDS DEBAUCH.

Strikes Negro Cook in the Face and Receives a Broken Neck.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 13.—(Special.)—A day's debauch in a boarding house owned by the American Steel Hoop Company ended today in the death of Harry Kallenberg, a puddler, employed by the company. Westly Parker, a negro cook, is under arrest.

Parker, who is from Harrisburg and has a wife in Pittsburgh, admits that he struck the other a blow, knocking him against the wall of the house, the fall breaking the man's neck. The men had been drinking together. The negro was reading a paper when the other slapped his face, starting the trouble. Kallenberg was 35 years old.

MOUNTAIN LOSES HEIGHT.

New United States Geological Survey Takes Twenty Feet from Mt. Whitney.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 13.—United States geological survey levelmen, under Topographer R. A. Farmer, who have been running a line of levels to the summit of Mount Whitney, have completed their work and today reported the true height of the mountain to be 14,502 feet.

While this shows Mount Whitney to be the highest measured mountain in the United States, it makes the true height 20 feet less than the figures that have generally been accepted heretofore.

BIDS FAMILY GOODBY, THEN DIES UNDER CAR

Circumstances in Death of William McIntyre Which Indicate He Committed Suicide.

William McIntyre, aged 50, of 226 Carothers avenue, Glendale, was run over by a street car in front of his place of business yesterday morning and died a few minutes later. It is rumored that when he left his home he bade his family farewell and said he intended to end his life. As the car approached it is alleged that McIntyre deliberately threw himself under the wheels. He has been despondent of late.

Martino Setrino, aged 21, of Carnegie, was drowned in Chartiers creek yesterday, near the Superior mill. The boy dived from the bank and was carried under a pier and his body caught between two piles. The body was recovered an hour afterward.

Michael Gishill, aged 10, of 316 Harmar street, was drowned in the Allegheny river yesterday at the foot of Twenty-seventh street. He sank while bathing with several companions. The boys swam to where he went down and after several attempts succeeded in finding the body. The boy's parents were notified and they went to the river and, although much affected, aided in taking the body home.

Thomas Donehue, aged 7, was drowned while bathing in the Allegheny river at Springdale on Saturday. The body was recovered later, but no report of the accident was made to the coroner until yesterday.

Joseph Wilds, aged 11, of 2426 Reed street, died at Passavant hospital yesterday from injuries received Saturday at the Peacock public bath. The room assigned to Wilds had a large hole broken in the marble partition and when the hot water was turned on the steam frightened the boy. He crawled through this hole and was badly cut. Death was caused by the loss of blood and shock.

Charles Wishiewski, aged 25, was killed on the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie railroad last night at McKees Rocks. He was with two companions when run down, and was decapitated. His sister is now on her way from the old country here.

Emil Dregenhoe, aged 15, of Sandy Creek was drowned near his home at 3 p. m. yesterday while bathing in the Allegheny river. The body was recovered.

Clocks that limp, clocks that won't go at all, clocks with the wheels in them all gone wrong, clocks with battered faces, clocks with broken hands, clocks with all sorts of ailments, have given the name "Clock Hospital," to the emporium where the damaged clocks mentioned are waiting for repairs. This institution for the rejuvenation of clocks is in Wineb1ddle avenue, just below Penn avenue. The hospital is kept by two brothers named Sternquist, who have two other brothers in Philadelphia in the same business.

In their love for clocks and the solicitude with which they make them as good as new, the Sternquists resemble the kind surgeon. They can make clocks and they can repair new ones as well as anybody else, but their interest in mainly called forth when they have some old grandfather's clock to put in order. Clocks many, many years old have come into their hands; clocks with wooden wheels and ivory bushings, old clocks with brass wheels and wooden plates. Each of its kind requires study, and delicate attention.

There are families in Pittsburgh who own comparative treasures, although they do not know it. Many an old wall clock is tired of, and a new-fangled time keeper is often desired by the owner. Did the owner but know, he might refrain from disposing of a 50-year old Howard clock for the price of old junk, or perhaps, in part, trade for one of a newer but not so excellent a make. Dealers in old furniture are on the lookout for Howard clocks, the Howard firm having been extinct for 25 years. The clocks are good timekeepers, and if they have got out of order a good clock repairer can restore them to youthful vigor. Rich men besiege the dealers for specimens of Howard clocks. Has anybody an old wall clock, let him not dispose of it unless he knows it is not a Howard.

Hold on to the Howards.

The name Howard is not emblazoned on the face or stamped on the works. Let him send it to the clock hospital, where the surgeons in charge will take it apart and tell by the way it is made whether it is a Howard clock or not. If it is a Howard the owner will either be advised to keep it suspended in a place of honor, or to hold it for a good price. Some people are apt to think that there is no virtue in any but one of the old-fashioned, six-foot grandfather's clocks, while unknown to them they may possess an unassuming wall clock that is just as valuable.

Stark, the laundryman, recently sent to the hospital a grandfather's clock that had been in the family 100 years. It originally came from Germany. The face is decorated with a gaudy flower and two highly-colored pillars. The design and execution of the decoration would not be considered artistic in these days, but many a man would like to have the clock for its undoubted antiquity and the excellence of its timekeeping qualities. The wheels of this clock are of brass, but the plates in which the bushings are set are of wood, the bushings being of brass. The clock runs by weights and the weights are suspended by cords. The old works will be left intact as far as possible. The Sternquists will merely put new bushings in and replace the cotton cord with gilt brass cord. They do not believe in modernizing an old clock, but the brass cord will last better than the cotton, and still be appropriate to the general ensemble of the timepiece.

One of the oddest of clocks was sent to the hospital recently by a family in Swissvale. It was made 150 years ago by Seth Thomas in New England. In the clock not only are the plates of wood, but the wheels as well. The pivots are of English steel, the bushings of ivory and the weights hung by cords.

Preserved Its Antiquity.

Now, many a clock repairer would have suggested that the works be replaced by a set of the works made for the modern hall clocks, but in that case there would have been nothing old about the clock but the case, and the Sternquists sympathized with the wish of the owner to have the clock returned to him with as much as possible of the halo of antiquity about it. So the brothers examined the clock. The ivory bushings were worn, the cord was rotten, and one of the wooden wheels had lost two of its teeth.

The brothers would have liked to put ivory bushings in, but the owner said that brass ones were cheaper and would suit him, as they are out of sight of any person looking at the clock; contrariwise, the owner thought the rotten cord ought to be replaced with a similar cord, but the brothers showed him that brass cord was no more modern than new cotton cord, and was much better for the purpose; both owner and brothers agreed to preserve the ancient wooden wheels, however, so the Sternquists with infinite trouble put two new wooden teeth on the broken wheel. The clock is now ticking away as good as new, and nearly as old all through as it was.

There is romance in clocks, when one considers the changes some of the old timekeepers have seen in the many years of their existence. The Sternquists have heard stories about clocks that have come under their care, and some of the stories are apocryphal. For example, one Philadelphia man maintained that a hall clock in his possession was the identical one that hung in the tavern of the landlord written of by some poet.

Hoodwinked the Landlord.

This landlord, it appears, was visited by two thieves, who bet him that he could not count the ticks of the clock for an hour without talking, and while the landlord was counting cleaned out the house. Victor Sternquist had read the poem, but this particular hall clock fell about 50 years short of having been made at the period treated of in the verses. Another family with a clock to repair had a story that had all the appearance of truth. It had been handed down in the family that an ancestor, a revolutionary soldier, had hidden in the tall case while British soldiers, thirsting for his blood, searched the house vainly.

COUNCILMAN IS ON HIGH GROUND

W. C. McCune of Dravosburg Insists on Obeying Law That Is Often Evaded.

HIS RESOLVE HURTS BOROUGH

Public office is not a private snap with William C. McCune, president of the Dravosburg council. Mr. McCune is president of the Dravosburg Dock Company and the borough authorities have found his place a handy one at which to have blacksmith work done and to buy lumber. At the last meeting of the borough council Mr. McCune served notice that he would not do any more work for the borough or furnish supplies, because, as he put it, he was a member of council, and the law plainly forbids councilmen to indulge in such practice.

This is rather high ground for the average borough or city councilman to occupy. It is true that councilmen and public officers have been known ostensibly to retire from the firm to which they belonged, when that firm was engaged in the business of furnishing public supplies; but somehow it was always noticed that when their term expired they resumed their place in the firm. Usually they had a son or a brother who had carried on the business of the firm, including that of bidding on contracts for borough or municipal work, and it has always been remarked that the official who had apparently left his firm never opened the books to the public to prove that he did not secretly share in the profits of the business given to his "former" firm by the borough or city of which he was either a councilman or an officer.

Costs the Borough Money.

Mr. McCune's brother members were somewhat surprised when he made his announcement, especially when they realized that the stand he took would cost the borough money, for they knew that the things Mr. McCune had done for the borough in his blacksmith shop and the supplies he had furnished would have cost the borough much more, if the borough authorities had gone elsewhere.

Dravosburg became a borough about two years ago and Mr. McCune was elected to council at that time, with three years to serve. Of course, everybody knows that for the past two years Mr. McCune's company did work for the borough, but nobody criticises Mr. McCune on the ground that his objection to this practice comes only now. It is well known that when he entered councils he reluctantly assented to doing odd jobs for the borough and many times threatened to cease, only receding from his position when confronted with the fact that it was money in the borough's treasury not to be compelled to go across the river to McKeesport to get what it wanted in the lines which the Dravosburg Dock Company could supply.

Not a Matter of Profit.

"Still," said Mr. McCune, "I knew all the time that it was against the letter of the law, and the only consolation I have is that the few dollars the borough paid my company do not represent a cent of profits, on the contrary, they stand only for actual cost or even for a loss. For example, if the borough wanted a pick sharpened and a man was sent with the tool to our blacksmith shop and we took five cents for the work, it was with the knowledge that it would have cost the borough at least 10 cents and perhaps more, if it had been necessary to send the man over to a blacksmith shop in McKeesport, ours being the only blacksmith ship in Dravosburg. Again, if the borough needed a few pieces of lumber and sent somebody to our place to get it, I knew that by the time I sent a man to pick out the stuff (for we do not do a general lumber business) that the price we would get for it did not represent the cost to us in cash and labor.

"Finally, I concluded that I couldn't stand it any longer. While I knew that I was not profiting, on the contrary, was losing money on borough business, I felt that in justice to myself and in obedience to the law, I could not do otherwise than call a halt. Hence, I gave notice at the last meeting of council that the thing had to stop. I didn't want somebody to come along, maybe after I am out of office and point to the items on the borough's books and say: 'Look at the rascal. He was robbing the borough while he was in council.' I mightn't then have the chance of pointing to the items myself and showing that the business done by my company was done at a loss to us.

A Principle at Stake.

"All the business done since I entered council amounts to only a few dollars, but the principle's the thing. I realize that men's ideas of what is a large and what is a small trade may vary, and if I continued the practice merely because the amount was trivial to me, a city councilman doing a large business might as justly argue that because many thousands of dollars' worth of work done for or supplies furnished by him to the city bore but a small proportion to his whole business, therefore he could conscientiously follow an illegal practice which to a poorer man might mean a fortune.

"No public official, I fully realize, has a right to set up his own theories, palter with his conscience and indulge in casuistical excuses to evade the plain letter of the law. The law says that I have no right to do work for the borough or furnish supplies. I intend to obey the law. Of course I realize that critics may say that I am a little late with my scruples but better late than never. Besides, I have always had my scruples, and I have already explained why I did not harken to them sooner. The borough's bills for the business I have done would have been much larger than they have been had I called a halt two years ago, as I freely admit, I should have done."

Mr. McCune moved to Dravosburg only a year before he was elected to council. The nomination came to him unsought. He had lived in Elizabeth all his life, having superintended boat yards and saw mills. He is conducting a successful business in Dravosburg, doing much work for independent coal companies.

President of Dravosburg Council.

VISITORS IN PULPITS.

Several Prominent Theologians Preach in the Absence of Pastors.

Vacation days were the cause of bringing many new faces into local pulpits yesterday. Among visiting clergymen were several prominent in their denominations. The Rev. Dr. W. C. Williamson of Burlington, Ia., former moderator of the United Presbyterian general assembly, occupied the pulpit of the First United Presbyterian church, Oakland, yesterday morning.

The Rev. Dr. Francis L. Patton, president of Princeton seminary, preached in the Third Presbyterian church; the Rev. Dr. John Robertson, Scotch evangelist at Winona Lake, occupied the pulpit of the East Liberty Presbyterian church, and the Rev. Dr. H. W. Temple of Washington, Pa., spoke in the Shadyside United Presbyterian church.

LEMONADE IS SERVED AT MEETING OF THE Y. M. C. A.

Iced lemonade and a talk to young men was an offering that overcame the oppressive weather conditions sufficiently to attract a large gathering at the religious meeting held in the parlors of the Bellevue Young Men's Christian association yesterday afternoon. The speaker was George Jackson, formerly general secretary of the Young Men's Christian association at Huntingdon, Pa.

Cat Gets a Long Fast.

SHARON, PA., Aug. 13.—(Special.)—When a carload of malt arrived at the Union Brewing Company's plant yesterday and an employe went to unfasten the door, he was startled by wild howls. He notified the management, and men with clubs ranged themselves about the car. When the door was opened a big black cat leaped out. It was locked in the car at Chicago and for eight days had been without food or water.

Change in a Latrobe Concern.

LATROBE, PA., Aug. 13.—(Special.)—Manager Burns of the Burns Uniform Steel and Metallic Company has severed his connection with the concern, which is now under the management of the Rev. D. J. Bole of the East End, Pittsburgh. The latter, besides being a minister, is a practical iron and steelworker. It is the intention to enlarge the plant and double the output.

DR. BAINBRIDGE TALKS FURTHER ON DEVELOPMENT OF THE CHILD

Tells of the Practical Phases of Both Nutrition and Environment.

A SUBJECT OF IMPORTANCE

(Special Letter to The Gazette.)

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., Aug. 11.—The second lecture on "Helps and Hindrances in the Development of the Child," delivered by William Seamon Bainbridge of New York, was more largely attended than the first. The Gazette containing the full text was eagerly bought up on its arrival, and orders for additional copies were sent to Pittsburg. The following is the text of the second lecture:

Last week we discussed heredity, and began the study of the infant during the first few weeks of life. Today it is our purpose to deal with some of the practical phases of both nutrition and environment, as they relate to the growing child. The importance of this subject everyone can appreciate. In a brief hour we can only touch upon a few points.

There are three critical periods in a child's life before adulthood—(1) infancy, from birth to about two years of age, when the weak and helpless babe has learned to walk and talk; (2) the irresponsible, awkward age, from seven to 10, or sometimes from 12 to 13. At this time the child, especially the boy, seems bent on mischief, and is often misunderstood by parent and teacher. (3) Adolescence, from 12 to 18 in the girl and from 13 to nearly 20 in the boy. It is the age of very important physical and mental change; the dawning conception of individual responsibility in life for self and others comes to us upon the human intellect, and the consciousness that the boy or girl is a part of the great world outside is at times overwhelming.

Let us consider nutrition and environment in each of these periods. Nutrition means the nourishing of the body, keeping every part up to the highest standard of health in spite of the changes constantly going on in the organism incident to growth and development. Growth is the increase in bulk and weight, while development is added complexity of structure and increased specialization of function.

Nutrition is essential to life and growth and wellbeing. The maturing child must build up brain, muscle and nerve for the present, and be prepared for the conflicts of the future. It means the nourishing of all parts of the body and keeping them in harmonious relation to themselves and the body as a whole in harmony with its environment. The well-nourished child is usually happy, strong and in good health.

Deviation from the normal may be in either of two directions: (1) malnutrition, poor nourishment, from whatever cause—usually from poverty, carelessness or ignorance; (2) overnutrition, which is quite as dangerous as malnutrition. This may be due to an over amount of all kinds of foods beyond that required by the organism; or one kind of food may be in so great excess that we find disease resulting. It is a common belief among many students of sociology and economics that it is by this over-nutrition among the favored majority, bringing on many diseases such as apoplexy and other maladies due to plethora of food and drink, that the ranks of the well-to-do are depleted. "Neither mendicancy nor riches," should be the prayer of us all, for "Plain living and high thinking" go hand in hand.

Digestive Apparatus in the Infant.

A brief review of some of the essentials of this wonderful process by which dead materials outside the body become a living part of the organism, will assist us in understanding the subject in hand. For this process a complex apparatus is necessary, for (1) receiving, (2) propelling, and (3) digesting the ingested materials. The two former are physical, and latter a chemical process. After the food has been so changed that it can pass through an animal membrane, there is need of (4) an absorbing apparatus of large surface. This we find in the intestinal tract of even the youngest. The mucous membrane of the small intestine is like velvet. There are millions of tiny elevations or depressions which make a large surface for the work of absorption. There are also need in this process digestive fluids, ferments. The ferments are the active agents in digestion. A ferment is a substance that changes other substances without itself undergoing any special change.

Conditions Necessary for Ferment.

Certain conditions absolutely necessary for the action of the ferments are: (1) The right amount and proportion of fluid. (2) There must be a certain range of temperature. If the temperature goes above a certain point—to fever heat—the ferments will not act. Ordinary food taken at such a time will simply putrify and not digest. Only the simplest nourishment should then be given. (3) Some ferments act in an acid medium, others in an alkaline. For example, the saliva is alkaline. When from decayed teeth or other causes acids are formed in the mouth, the ferment of the saliva is killed.

Saliva—The child at birth, and for weeks afterwards, has no active ptyalin, or starch-forming ferment. Even after its appearance its activity is very slight. When this ferment is finally established as a permanent and active agent in the saliva it is there for digestive purposes. Many fail into the unconscious error of believing that the mouth is simply an organ or taste, a grinding machine to triturate the food, a funnel through which materials pass on to the stomach, and a passageway through which the waste matter is carried to the outer world. Besides all this, it is a chamber for the partial digestion of starchy foods. Coarse starches should be absent in infancy and but sparingly given to the young child as it approaches adult life. The first stage of the digestion of starchy foods takes place in the mouth, and nothing further is done for these carbo-hydrates for hours afterwards—till they pass out of the stomach into the intestines. If, then, the coarse starch passes to the stomach unchanged, the result is usually putrefaction, the food value is largely lost and noxious gases are produced. Here is to be found the explanation of many an attack of colic in the infant.

Stomach Digestion in Infants.

The stomach of the infant is tubular in shape, and this tube is almost vertical. A slight dilation at one end is ultimately to be the stomach. The œsophageal sphincter is imperfectly developed. The child's stomach is like a narrow bottle; its muscular power weak, its peristaltic action, therefore, very imperfect; the power to push on the contents of the stomach into the intestine is weak. Nature took note of this latter fact in her plan, for the constriction between the stomach and intestine, which exists in the adult, is absent in the child at birth. Thus, there is not so great resistance for the food that is to be passed from the stomach to the intestine, consequently the power from behind need not be so great.

While the gastric juice in the babe will not do many things required of it in the adult, such as to tear to pieces masses of proteid matter, as e. g., fiber of meat, yet it has a very large amount of rennin, or milk-curdling ferment, which acts upon the curd of the milk. Thus it can do the work which it can rightly be called upon to accomplish. It will digest its part of what the body needs at one time.

Intestinal Digestion of Infants.

There is great growth of the intestinal structure in early life. The length of the intestinal tube seems to increase by bounds. Of the ferments in the intestines, trypsin, which digests proteid matters, and steapsin, which digests the fats, are both barely active in infancy; amylopsin, which digests sugars and starches, is totally inert at first, and later, for a long time, very inactive. Often by proper cooking we can change coarse starches to dextrine, and make them perfectly digestible. This is what happens with the starch in bread that is thoroughly toasted. Candies are not made from milk sugar—the only form of sugar that should be given to the infant.

The increase of all these manifold functions, the keeping all in harmony, depends upon the nervous system, and this, in turn, is totally immature in the little one. The brain and nerves are not prepared for any great strain; they are prepared for necessary work but not for the unnecessary. For example, almost all the nerves in an infant are non-medullated, viz., without a protective sheath.

The brain grows more in size during the first two years of life, than in all the rest. Thousands of little processes are sent down in all directions into the body, and every one of these must have its own nutrition.

The steady increase of functional diseases among children is a most powerful argument for greater attention to the subject of hygiene of the nervous system. Even in infancy the child should be very carefully safeguarded along this line. The little one needs quiet and rest while these immature nerves and this rapidly growing brain are attending to essentials. During the first few weeks of life sleep should occupy 20 hours out of the 24, and during the succeeding months there should be far more than is usually provided.

Purity and Quality of Food.

The purity and quality needs to be beyond question. The milk supply should be carefully looked after. For the little child the mother's milk is the ideal food. Regularity is most important. Beef juice, one to three ounces daily, may be given at the end of the first year. After 18 months scraped beef or mutton or soft-boiled eggs can be added to the diet. It goes without saying that the child needs plenty of water inside and outside.

Great advance has been made in the line of healthful clothing by scientific women who have been working out plans which give evenness of pressure, uniformity of temperature, absence of hands and pins and easy adjustability—really the essentials for good clothing for any age.

The second summer has been regarded by many as the most critical period, but in reality it should not be as critical as the first summer. Still, some infants, strong until this period, have had their digestion so badly deranged by improper feeding and by food that was too starchy and swallowed without sufficient mastication, that sickness has followed. It is said, "Strong food will build up strong children," but food that is beyond the power of the child's digestive apparatus to digest will weaken and not strengthen. As things are, there is a great mortality during the second summer, and the best of care is needed.

Second: The Irresponsible Period.

Let us consider nutrition and environment in relation to this period. (1)—The mouth. The teeth should receive special care. Decaying teeth are prolific soil for germs. These germs pass into the stomach, and there do harm unless killed by the acid of the gastric fluid. Any cavity in the teeth means decay. Be very watchful.

(2)—The throat. Large tonsils are a mass of fleshy matter, with their openings to catch the food. They ought not to be there. Imagine how quickly food left about in a warm house will decay. The same thing happens in the case of food caught in the tonsils. Further, they interfere with proper respiration. They furnish good soil for tuberculous germs, diphtheria, tonsilitis, etc. Adenoids block the way for the air. About one-fourth the cases of adenoids show tuberculous germs.

(2)—The eyes. It is important to protect the eyes, to allow no great strain upon them. See to it that the light comes from the right direction, that there is sufficient illumination of the object, and that in reading the book is held at the correct distance from the eyes and at the right angle.

This is the time to correct any defects which may not have been attended to earlier. Our school reports show a great prevalence of defects of the eyes, the ears, and often of the throat or the spine.

(4)—The ears. Ear wax should be carefully removed but not with any common household article. It is an oily substance, but a good one. "Never put anything but your elbow into your ear." Adenoids have a bad effect upon the hearing. The oldtime boxing of the ears is now fortunately obsolete in school punishments, but at times, in the family even yet, children are hurt in this way. This is a dangerous form of correction or play, and often causes a rupture of the ear drum.

(5)—The nose. There may be nasal obstruction in addition to adenoids. If the child is breathing through the mouth, and the nasal passages are clogged, attend to this important matter very speedily. The atmosphere in which the child lives, both at home and at school, should be pure and certain plenty of oxygen and absence of dust.

(6)—Posture. Correct posture at school, at home, and at play is very important for the growing boy or girl, and especially for the girl. Special curves may begin early. A deformed pelvis and displaced organs, causing great trouble later on in life, may have begun in a wrong way of standing or sitting in school.

School Lunches.

How we all as youngsters patronized the pie store and the candy man at lunch time! Boards of education of some city schools have taken this matter in hand and endeavored to regulate the character of the food sold to the pupils. But the time allowed for eating, and the reasons for eating slowly, should also be emphasized. Children too often at home and at school hastily swallow their food, take no time for masticating it, and rush out to have the longer time for play.

Cooked fats are hard to digest. The child's stomach should not be burdened with pieces of fatty pastry. Constant munching between meals is taxing on the child's stomach. How many people on these grounds during the past week have given a few cents to small children for candy and popcorn, etc. Shall we sacrifice the child's digestion to give ourselves pleasure? A child is not a plaything.

The school curriculum should be so arranged that the hardest lessons do not come at a time when blood is needed for digestion. The whole question of bodily health, both for the teacher and the pupil, should receive more attention from leaders of education than it does today.

Nervous System.

It is important that for the boy and girl at this period there should be plenty of sleep at regular hours. Anxiety should be avoided at mealtime. Experiments have proven that worry and fear will prevent digestion. A scientist put two dogs into a room just before the time for eating. One dog had never seen a whip; it had been treated all its life with gentle kindness. The other animal had had a cruel master, and knew what the whip meant. The first dog ate its food quietly, the other trembled and quivered as he saw the lash near by. Both dogs were killed after the meal. The food of the dog that had eaten with pleasure thought had digested; the stomach of the second dog had not been able to do its work, and no digestion had taken place. The moral is plain. Do not take the time for correcting and punishing the boy or girl. Let the family table be taken not only with good food, but happy words to aid its digestion.

Encourage the child to tell of the little things of its life—great to the young child, seemingly small to those who are older. If this confidence is secured in early years many a long sickness may be escaped by knowing the premonitory symptoms. Many an ill both of body and mind can be prevented. The so-called "unappropriated blessings" of society—the old-maid aunties—often receive the closest confidences of the boys and girls and are the great safeguards.

A Physician Is Needed.

Wherever there seems to be anything physically wrong with the child a physician should be consulted. A few unnecessary visits, with the verdict by the doctor that all goes well, is far better than going too late, and possibly facing weeks and months of illness which may leave their effects, possibly weakening the body for all time. Do not try experiments on the child any more than you would experiment with a valuable watch.

Abnormalities should be eradicated very early. If not removed, they may add to the difficulties of right living for the developing girl or boy.

The servants in the household, in their relation to the child, are a factor to be carefully considered. Study what your nurse does in your absence. Watch the moral training some of the ignorant persons who are employed are giving the children. Watch!

Period of Adolescence.

So much attention to this period has been elaborately given by Dr. G. Stanley Hall and others that I will only refer to a few facts.

During the great changes at this period there are decided physical cravings. The girls want pickles at all hours, and indulge in great boxes of candy; the boys crave cigarets and the pipe. Dr. J. W. Seaver, in his work of physical culture at Yale university, states that he found the non-smokers of a class for four years gained in weight, height and girth of chest at least 15 per cent more than the regular smokers, and at least 12 per cent more than the irregular smokers. In lung capacity the gain was over 50 per cent in favor of the non-users over regular users and 35 per cent as compared with the irregular users.

I am not here to discuss the matter of the smoking of tobacco by the adult, but I am here to emphasize the absolute evil which comes from smoking during the adolescent period. The mind and body are forming and growing, and nicotine put into the body then is decidedly deleterious, not only to the structure, but also the physiological action.

Mental Cravings.

The desire to know, to search out that which seems more or less hidden, everything that has a mystery about it, whether it be in the self or others, arouses the attention and interest. The confidence of the parent and their wise dealing on delicate matters should prevent coarse, bold facts, often warped, from passing from playmates and servants to the child. Playing upon this desire to know and understand, evil persons are carrying on an enormous traffic for gain. Tons of literature are being confiscated. More is left. Teachers in public or private schools should know what is being passed on secretly from desk to desk.

To sum up, let me quote in substance a few facts given to me by an authority, who has made a study of over 20,000 children.

"1. Children of non-laboring classes are superior in mental ability to those of the laboring; therefore, social conditions affect mental states.

"2. Children of non-laboring classes show much higher per cent of sickness and nervousness.

"3. Children of well-to-do parents are, as a rule, taller and heavier than children of poor parents, doubtless due to better food, light, air, etc.

"4. Children of American-born parents are taller and heavier than those of other nationalities.

"5. First-born children excel later-born in height and weight.

"6. Girls between 12 and 14 years average more in weight and height than boys at the same age. They grow very fast at this time, and need most of their vitality to adapt themselves to new conditions of life. For this reason they should be free from care and work more than at other times, but instead it is found that their home and school duties are increased at this time, so that their health is impaired and undermined.

"7. City-bred children, while more vivacious, have less power of endurance than country-bred.

"8. Among 5,000 Chicago school children 25 per cent had defective eyesight—the defect usually due to faulty school conditions, usually increases most during the first three school years.

"9. As the parents have the sympathy and heart of the child, they can make it almost what they will. If they gave as much time and patience to the nurture of their children as they do to society, outside amusements and pets, much of the evil and crime in the world might cease, and all would become better.

Dr. Morality, like etiquette, must be taught through repeated acts that become a habit.

We have been speaking of the home beautiful and the home wonderful in which we live in this world, but more beautiful and more wonderful is this immortal inmate of every human dwelling—the living soul. The physical and mental ideal which we all long for and toward which we are striving, is not always possible, but the beauty of the soul life within is often made richer and sweeter and purer because of the very lack of symmetry and perfection of the habitation in which it dwells. We have not far to look for examples of this. They are here at Chautauqua.

CHAUTAUQUA

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., Aug. 13.—(Special.)—After two days of frequent rains the bright sunshine this morning was welcomed by the many visitors, who find that life on crowded porches during wet days leaves much to be desired in comfort and enjoyment.

Last evening was clear and several parties from Bemus Point, Lakewood and Jamestown enjoyed the moonlight trip when they came to hear Flotow's opera, "Martha," which was sung by the choir of more than 400 voices and by the soloists, Miss Frieda Stender, soprano; Mrs. Harryett Foster, contralto; Mr. Frank Croxton, bass, and Mr. Everard Calthrop, tenor. Mr. Alfred Hallam was director.

Dr. Jesse L. Hurlbut, whose daily classes in Bible study have been so popular, especially with Sunday school teachers, had charge of the Bible study this morning. He also made the address at the assembly convocation and later in the day gave an interesting talk on Palestine, using for illustrations the model of Palestine down on the lake front. Dr. Hurlbut's intention had been to walk around the park, talking on each place as he reached it, but the audience was so large that it covered the model and the places could only be indicated.

Services were held in the various denominational houses, those at the Lutheran headquarters being led by D. W. N. Miller; at the Baptist, by the Rev. C. W. Negus of Homer, N. Y.; at the Presbyterian, by Dr. Thompson of Indian territory; at the Disciples, by the Rev. Mr. Low of Cleveland; at the Unitarian, by the Rev. W. Channing Brown; at the Chapel of the Good Shepherd, by the Rev. Mr. Dysart of Mayville, N. Y.; at the Methodist, communion service by Dr. Jesse L. Hurlbut, assisted by the Rev. E. W. Morton, the local minister, and by several visiting ministers.

A large graduating class and all other members of the Chautauqua Literary Scientific Circle on the grounds, met in the Hall of Philosophy and marched in a body to the amphitheater, where seats had been reserved for them in the center of the hall, which was beautifully decorated in palms, ferns and white hydrangeas. The baccalaureate sermon was preached by the chancellor of the institution, Bishop John H. Vincent, who spoke to an audience of about 7,000.

Miss Phoebe H. Elliott had charge of the children in the kindergarten Sunday school, while at the same hour Miss Frances B. Wells conducted the primary school and the Rev. E. W. Morton the intermediate.

Dr. Richard Burton of New York was the speaker at the Christian Ethics meeting, which is held every Sunday afternoon for young people only.

Bishop Vincent had charge of the prettiest service of the Chautauqua Sunday, the vesper service.

Dr. G. C. Schumeker led the men's open air meeting, and at the same hour Miss Blanchard spoke at the women's open air meeting.

The sacred song service was attended by the largest Sunday night audience of 1906.

A birthday surprise was given in honor of Mr. W. H. Falkenstein of Allegheny, Pa. The table was decked with sweet peas and the guests of the cottage remembered him with many favors of the day. Mr. Falkenstein responded to the toasts, and all present will remember the occasion.

Pittsburghers at Lake View cottage are: Sadie H. Wiggins, Catherine Remley, Lida Kirkpatrick, Sarah T. Agnew, Albert B. Allcroft, T. T. Royston, A. B. Van Fossen, Edwin G. Donaghey, James D. Dyer, Mrs. Wiggin, Anna Wiggin, Mary Wiggin, Mrs. N. M. Dyer, Jean W. Dyer, Laura M. Dyer, Mrs. W. H. Faulkenstein, Helen Faulkenstein, Anna Faulkenstein, Mrs. A. L. Gold, Mr. A. L. Gold, Marie E. Gold, Joseph H. Gold, William Brand, Mrs. William Brand, Nannie E. Brand, Charles F. Brand, Thurlow W. Brand; Miss Jessie Noblock, Allegheny; Miss Eck, Allegheny; Miss Catharine Kenny, Bellevue, Pa.; Mrs. Kenny, Bellevue, Pa.; Mrs. William Dutesman and son, Allen, Pittsburgh.

Dunkards Hold Services.

For the first time in several months services were held in the Pittsburgh Brethren German Baptist church, Greenfield avenue and Montclair street. The congregation, whose denomination is often termed Dunkards, has no regular pastor. The services yesterday morning consisted of songs, recitations, and addresses, while in the evening a Christian Workers' service was held.

Hoch of Kansas, with his party, which included Mrs. Hoch and Miss Hoch and an entourage of colonels and dignitaries of his staff, were principal figures in the boardwalk parade today and had the honor of leading the greatest crowd ever turned out on the esplanade. The chief executive of the Sunflower state led his party into the surf about noon and appeared to enjoy the buffeting of the waves. A special train brought the distinguished visitors from Philadelphia after the launching of the Kansas yesterday and they occupied the luxurious Schwab suite at the Marlborough until tonight, when they left for Washington, where Gov. Hoch will visit his son, a student in the Washington law school.

Atlantic City's new postoffice was formally opened at midnight last night and thousands of visitors dropped in to the new federal building today to look over its fine accommodations for handling mail.

C. S. Rothleder, one of the best-known of Pittsburgh's rising young financial men, was on the boardwalk today. Miss Norma Englert and Miss Retta Englert, charming Pittsburgh visitors, were also noted in the morning turnout in pretty gowns.

Mrs. Richard J. Couzins, a Pittsburgh bride, here with her husband for their honeymoon, is one of the most attractive of the bevy of summer brides and her gowns have attracted favorable attention at the Coleman.

W. T. Todd, Mrs. Todd, Master Todd and their three pretty daughters are interesting additions to the Pittsburgh colony at the Marlborough.

OPTIMISM PERVADES MARKET; SPECULATION WILL BROADEN

Confidence in the Future Is Running Strong and It Is Much Easier to Induce Buying Than Selling.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Interest in the stock market broadened for the first time in several weeks as a result of the publication of the government's August crop report on Thursday last. The promises contained in the reported condition of the principal cereals, together with the brilliant estimates of the harvests made by crop statisticians, served as a tangible something which could well explain the latent strength of the stock market and at the same time provide a potent reason why stocks should enhance in values. There were many people who were influenced by the good showing of the crops and who felt more confident in entering the stock market at the present level of prices than they had been hitherto. It was natural, therefore, that the speculative community should make a demonstration in the shares of those properties directly affected and in others which will reap the fruits of the promised great yield of wheat, corn and oats, not to mention the minor staples of the soil.

Aside from material development, such as assured crops, there has been little change in the financial situation. Business continues good, with a tendency to broaden now the government has placed its approval on the many favorable crop reports which have circulated for a month past. All manufacturers look for a continuance of the present healthy conditions, and an air of optimism exists. Money continues easy and there is a liberal supply offering at cheap interest rates. Securities are not being manufactured for various reasons, and in Europe money is a drug on the market. The elements and essentials conducive to a broad speculation in the security markets are readily available.

How this condition of affairs is being reflected in the security market is brought out by the events of the last week, which have been indicative of the confidence prevailing and the expectations of greater things in the future. There were spectacular advances in prices of high-priced stocks, ranging from 10 to 30 points. New high record prices were established in a half score or more issues and the average price of the active standard railroad and industrial shares touched the highest figures in their history. Extravagant predictions as to the future values of properties are being made, and the man who preaches conservatism, or who urges caution belongs to an extremely small minority.

Judging from the atmosphere of Wall street, it is no place for a bear on values. "Why, there is not a single argument that can be advanced to influence the sale of securities," is a statement made very frequently in brokerage offices, as well as commission houses, at the present time. The earnings of railroads and industrial companies, the brilliant prordises of the crops, the ease of money, the absorption of bonds and high-grade investments, the scarcity of floating supplies of stocks, the ease with which the stock market is advanced, and the fact that the movement in the manufacture of securities by bankers has not been begun, are pointed to as reasons why securities should be bought, even with high record prices asked. It is a potent fact that holders of securities are not wholly disposed to sell under the existing conditions.

The forces at work in the economic world point to a broadening of speculation. The ease of money in the European capitals as well as in New York are contributing to the "discounting" of the future in progress. Income return for the moment has been lost sight of and people no longer discuss the interest yield, but are interested in the prospective increase in values a year or two years hence. This stock, it is argued, cannot help but pay an increased dividend because of the extra money received from the dividends of the other corporation which it controls.

Confidence in the future is running strong. It is easier to induce buying than selling. It is also very easy and much more pleasant to discuss favorable developments than to weigh carefully the possibilities of a changed money market, a campaign against corporations which are infringing the law, or possible tariff and railroad rate legislation, which may strip the great corporations whose shares are now soaring of much of their earning power.

As was anticipated, the peace negotiations proved to be a factor of great importance in the markets of the world. London has become skeptical, St. Petersburg is pessimistic, Berlin and Paris alternating between hope and fear and New York optimistic, mingled with some indifference. It is natural that the world's financial markets should hesitate and mark time pending the developments of the historic meeting at Portsmouth. Europe's monetary capitals have been husbanding their resources, and gold has been hoarded for months pending possible entanglements.

In this city, as elsewhere, bankers are loath to take up great projects because of the contingencies that may develop. As a result, money has become very plentiful abroad and the New York market has participated in the plentitude. These funds are, of course, available for the speculative element, and it seems plain that they are making good use of their opportunity. This money will undoubtedly be called into use in event of a declaration of peace.

Europe, and possibly America, will be called upon for credits to pay an indemnity. Funds on deposit here will probably be withdrawn by Japan, but at the same time the fate of undertakings held in abeyance, waiting the outcome of the negotiations, will be decisively ended. If the negotiations end unsuccessfully, bankers here and abroad will be called upon to supply the sinews of war. Naturally, with good collateral and prospects of good commissions, bankers will turn to the projects wherein the most profits can be made for themselves and their customers. This, in turn, will hamper ordinary domestic developments to which funds of investors could be applied.

Little developed in the money market to expect any material change. There were signals toward the end of the week that time money would stiffen slightly in anticipation of the crop moving demands. As a result, there has been a slight shifting of rates toward a higher level. Doubtless this will continue with moderation until the crops are moved.

REVIEW OF THE WEEK IN THE LOCAL MARKETS

Merchants Had Less Trade, but Figures Were Large—Farmers Are Enjoying Trade.

The past week in the local markets has been one of excellent trade, although not so heavy in the line of garden stuff as characterized the weeks of last month. This is accounted for by the fact that home-grown stuff of every kind is now in the market and farmers and hucksters will claim the trade in garden stuff for the rest of the summer season.

Local merchants had plenty to do, however. There are many things which the Pittsburg market demands which the nearby farmer cannot furnish, such as melons, fruits, etc. These are in great demand, and the trade in them fully balanced the loss to merchants occasioned by the opening of the huckster season. The week's receipts will show that the value of the business was as great as before although the volume was much less.

There were few changes to record. Those which were made were in favor of the consumer. Flour reached a top price under the 8s mark, and is weak at that, heavy shading being done to secure trade. Vegetables of all kinds are marked down, while butter, eggs and cheese are at a high summer price with prospects of remaining there so far as butter and eggs are concerned. Cheese is weak.

HAY AND GRAIN.

Receipts Saturday were: Pennsylvania—18 cars oats; 4 cars corn, 1 car hay, 3 cars straw, 5 cars feed. Baltimore & Ohio—1 car hay, 1 car straw. Lake Erie—4 cars hay, 3 cars oats, 3 cars corn, 7 cars feed.

The latter part of the week showed a better demand for oats. About all the old crop is disposed of, and for some days we have been quoting new entirely. While receipts have been heavy the first of the week the tracks are all cleared up, and not so many are arriving now as the crop was harvested in good condition, and it is safe to ship the grain to the eastern market, which has greatly relieved the congested condition here. New hay has been slow coming in, which has made good stock of old hay in demand. Arrivals of feed are not heavy. More is used now and receipts are readily picked up. Shelled corn is slightly weaker. Ear corn continues scarce. There is no change in straw. New wheat is arriving at country mills now and we have changed our quotations to new.

Stabbing Affray Proves Fatal.

STEUBENVILLE, O., Aug. 13.—(Special.)—A stabbing affray in a Polish boarding house at New Cumberland, early this morning, will result in the death of Stany Marchra, who is at the hospital here with a wound in the side. John Stanieki was arrested, charged with the crime.

DEPRESSION RULES IN WHEAT MARKET

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—Semi-official denial of serious damage to the Russian wheat crop caused weakness in the wheat market here today. Clear weather in the United States emphasized the depression. At the close the September option was down 1⅛@1¼c. Corn is off ¾c. Oats show a loss of ⅞c. Provisions are practically unchanged.

The wheat market was weak from the start. With no news of any character to inspire active demand, prices gradually sagged. At the opening the September option was off ⅛@¼c, at 83¼@83½c. Fit traders and commission houses were liberal sellers. The main reason for the selling was a cablegram from an English crop statistician, stating that according to a semi-official report the condition of the Russian winter wheat crop is generally above average. This discrediting of alarming rumors current yesterday developed a general selling movement. The domestic situation was considered favorable to the bears, the majority of reports from the northwest giving glowing accounts of the condition of the new crop. For September the lowest point of the day's trade was at 81¾c. Late in the session prices rallied slightly on covering by shorts, but the close was weak, with September at 83¼@83⅝c. Clearances of Wheat and flour were equal to 149,000 bushels. Primary receipts were 776,000 bushels, compared with 893,000 bushels a year ago. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 460 cars, against 460 cars last week and 297 cars a year ago.

An official forecast of showers throughout the middle west was the cause of persistent selling of corn. As a result the market was weak the entire session. Commission houses sold December and May, and caused interest sold September and Chicago reported receipts of 440

Baltimore & Ohio, Upon 5 Per Cent Basis, Shows Wonderful Growth from 1896.

A FEW TELLING STATISTICS

The Baltimore & Ohio upon a 5 per cent basis which by the action of the meeting last month became the fact, marked another epoch in the historical old company's record which is contemporaneous with the railway development of the country. Still operating under the original charter, the first instrument of the nature in the world, it is the only one of the pioneer companies continuing with name unchanged. Familiar as household words may be said of it, and thus an interest in what may come to it of good or of bad, more widespread, perhaps, than felt for any like corporation.

Osler's diagnosis of conditions prevailing in 1896 would have been "survival beyond usefulness" and his prescription, chloroform. Senile, albeit, the old company was not. Anemic it unquestionably was. Digressing to the vernacular of the day, "it had never been worked for what it was worth," and possibly no expression could more literally describe the situation. If ever a man displayed true genius, John K. Cowen did in maintaining heart action in the B. & O. when all vital organs were enmeshed in the accumulation of any old thing in the way of stimulus to keep up a show of animation. The germ was there all the time; had never been permitted a development, relatively, beyond the embryonic stage.

Millions Instead of Thousands.

It's millions now, in every-day talk, where it used to be thousands, nevertheless the multi-million atmosphere environing things B. & O. hasn't seemed exactly right to a great many people who haven't waked up to a comprehension that a decade has gone by since they knew, or thought they did, how things were. These old friends yet gravely shake their heads when contemplating the, to them, overpowering aggregate of $420,000,000 of liabilities standing in the company's name. Half this total was prone to be a very big load to carry. It undoubtedly was as matters were in the days of auld lang syne. In 1898 the company fell down on less than $150,000,000 of bonds; couldn't pay the interest on them, and the additional $60,000,000 of stock, preferred and common, was left wholly in the cold.

Nine years later, not only had the company liquidated every dollar of floating debt, met every outstanding note, made good every deficit of the old days, but from one year's income (1904) paid the interest upon the bonds and 4 per cent dividends upon the stock—together representative of the $420,000,000; paid rentals and taxes, also miscellaneous improvements aggregating nearly $500,000; appropriated $2,000,000 for additions and betterments; took care of a million and more other expenditures and still had left a couple of millions to add to surplus, which then became $7,250,000—itself not a bad sized nest egg to have rounded out in the six intervening years from the end of the insolvency period.

A Case of Get There or Die.

It was a case of "get there or die" in 1896. Every conceivable scheme was worked to swell tonnage and nothing that ingenuity could devise and a desperate cause justify, was stopped at in the attempt to avert the impending calamity. Under the strain, and the added impetus of the infusion of new and vigorous blood from the West, the results attained were memorable.

The year 1896 was very far from a gain one, and in its becoming the basis for comparisons is with the gaining of no advantage because of the insolvency. The total tonnage was the greatest to that time in the history of the company, and exceeded by 2,000,000 tons that of the previous year and 4,000,000 tons that of 1890, when the freight earnings per mile were the record figures. The difference in the total freight revenue of 1890 and 1896 was but $170,000.

The forging to the fore of the traffic-getter has not so long been of the conspicuous advances in American railway administration. Individual distinctions, succession through inheritance and other than what might be termed the commercial ruled. The policy was largely personal; conformed to the views of one man, the predominating bulk of whose holdings, or those he personated, viewed as justifying his supremacy. A subordination to him, whereas now the deference is to it. Traffic is the It, and with a capital I.

Whether or no Oscar G. Murray was the first to emphasize tonnage and a policy centering upon securing it as the desideratum is immaterial. Since his advent upon the B. & O. has come about the concentration upon traffic bearings notable in railroad direction. In continuity, too, with that which signalized his course as co-receiver with Cowen, when the railroad world was treated to the unprecedented spectacle of a system brought to a comparatively high stage of efficiency while under court control. When Hill of the Great Northern, with Field and the elder Armour, bought so heavily in B. & O. stock, he remarked: "It is the greatest bargain ever thrown upon the railroad counter." This, it should be remembered, was not until Murray had made the fact evident to the shrewd veteran in transportation verities, as also to his equally sagacious associates, themselves versed as few in demand for and use of rail transit.

Taking the period embracing 1893-1898, inclusive, for comparison with the period comprising the corresponding number of years from 1899 to 1904, inclusive, the average annual earnings of the latter period were 44 per cent per mile greater than those of the former period, the increase exceeding the average annual charge per mile to capital by 36 per cent. The increase of net earnings was equal to 85 per cent of the charge to capital for construction, betterments and equipment. In other words, the expenditures were being five-eighths reimbursed through an augmented net revenue from operation as the improvements progressed. Other millions—$14,500,000—will be paid out as rapidly as the 250 engines and 10,000 freight cars recently ordered can be delivered.

Had Everything to Get.

It would appear that $125,000,000 to $130,000,000, disbursed within a decade upon track, motive power and rolling stock, ought to put the road in pretty fair shape for business. It will. But when the contemplation of the immensity of the figures impresses that it costs a heap of money to do a railroad business nowadays, the fact should be borne in mind that the B. & O. had everything to get. It was a case of being born again—the making of a railroad in fact as in name.

To have doubled the volume of tonnage in the nine years since 1896, three of them enveloped in the doubt and distrust sequencing a defaulted credit, stands as a revelation of the importance of the Baltimore & Ohio's geographical position, and is most significantly illustrative of the possibilities when men and method measure up to them. It is doubtful if a record matching it in interesting impressive aspects can be found. Belonging the freight figures to the mileage plane, the average earnings advanced beyond 75 per cent over those of 1896, exceeding $12,000 per mile in 1904; this for the entire system, the lean as also the fat lines.

Through statistics it is demonstrated that the average distance carried in 1904 was nearly 35 miles, or 22 per cent greater than in 1895, and the average rate actually received per ton per mile was 4 per cent less the former than the latter-named year. To be minute, a decrease of 27-1000 of a cent, or from 620-1000 of a cent to 593-1000 of a cent per ton per mile. Just a little thing like the 27-1000 part of a penny per ton per mile meant, in this instance, no less sum than $250,000.

Gross Earnings Grow 60 Per Cent.

Gross earnings from operation reached $18,300 per mile in 1904, an increase of 60 per cent over 1896. Operating expenses, of course, went up appreciably, 50 per cent a mile. In ratio to the earnings, however, they were 9 per cent less than in 1896. Net earnings from operation increased almost 150 per cent as a whole and 80 per cent on a mileage basis. Gross income was $6,500 greater per mile in 1904 than in 1896. In this latter year the ratio of the bonded debt to the entire debt, liabilities, funded and stock, was 70 per cent; in 1904 it was 56 per cent. In round numbers, the comparison of $108,000 per mile capitalization, bonds and stocks, in 1904 to $71,000 in 1896, shows a remarkable increase.

In financial, banking and investment circles, where the situation is known from a to izzard, the past has no relationship to the present. Twenty to 25 million cash balances produce respect, and as the outside public learns, through bankers and others, of where there is such abundance, even the shyest of those who, when the storm broke, ran into their holes and pulled them after, are letting their hearts' cockles warm again toward the old company, convinced, almost in spite of themselves, that the clouds have all rolled by. That the B. & O. is truly on the sunny side of Easy street.

Further proof of it were such necessary, is to be found in the figures of the results of operation for the year closed with June 30, 1905, and just announced. Gross earnings from traffic in excess of $67,500,000, which is $2,500,000 greater than ever before in the company's history; the net earnings reaching $23,000,000—such figures are telling. The general income account, too, will, for the first time, total beyond $70,000,000.

TAKES SMALL ARMY TO OPERATE LUNA

COSTS A HEAP, BUT IT PAYS

Upon entering the gates of beautiful Luna park, and standing upon the uppermost steps of the entrance, and looking down upon the animated picture of beauty and enjoyment there presented, one's mind grasps the picture, but does not delve into details. "It is lovely" is the usual exclamation, but no thought is given the creators of all this loveliness. Luna was not the creation of a fairy's wand. It was the conception of a genius in the amusement field, who, after conceiving it, surrounded himself with an army of co-laborers, and together the conception was wrought into an entity which affords amusement to countless thousands.

It takes an immense force to run a place of amusement on a magnitude that Luna park is run, and in the selection of his staff, Frederick Ingersoll, the man who brought Luna into being, has shown rare talent and business acumen. Not one employe is on the payrolls of the park whose services could be dispensed with, and yet there are 312 employes, who work in unison, loyally and energetically for the interests of the management and the success of the undertaking and who, though largely in the background, keep the wheels going and make it possible for Pittsburghers to enjoy an evening's amusement of the very highest and cleanest, as well as wholesome character.

The many dimes, nickels and quarters which are passed over to the park management through the numerous cashiers each day must be counted and checked up each evening, and this necessitates a large corps of men in the cashier's department. In order to gather these dimes and fractional currency, the amusements must run, and a very large corps of men, ever in the background, are constantly employed in keeping the wheels revolving. Then again, ere the amusements can run, there must be a crowd to patronize them, and the work of drawing this crowd from all sections of Pittsburgh and Allegheny county devolves upon the publicity department, which works largely through the medium of the newspapers. Barkers or ballyhoos are necessary after the crowd shall have gathered in the park, to invite attention to the various inside attractions, and so it goes. Each one of the 312 employes has his or her work to perform, and as in a watch each cog or screw is necessary, so in a big park like Luna, each employe is an absolute essential.

The cost of carrying an army of employes such as Luna employs is, of course, great, but this cost is necessary, and is figured in as part of the expense necessary to the successful management of the vast enterprise. This fixed charge, reduced to scientific business basis since the completion of the "fairyland," averages $1,000 a day, and this is but a portion of the many other expenses incidental to the conduct of Luna. Lights must be furnished, power supplied, bands engaged, actors secured, and concessionaires looked after. All of these incidentals cost money, and the expense of an amusement resort of magnitude are terrific.

Yet the attendance justifies these expenditures, and Luna park is a money-making investment for its owners. An average of 30,000 people throng to the park daily and nightly and it is a conservative estimate that, notwithstanding the admission is but a dime, the average expenditure per capita is 60 cents, thus making the daily receipts aggregate $18,000. Of course, all who enter the park do not spend 60 cents. Some spend considerably less and some considerably more, but the average is conservatively estimated.

BOA CONSTRICTOR AT HIGHLAND ZOO

NEW PALMS IN SCHENLEY PARK

Supt. Ernest Tretow has now a collection of 19 varieties of snakes at the Highland zoo. Within the past week the collection was enlarged by the donation of five new reptiles, one of which is a baby boa constrictor that measures three or four feet. This snake is the chief attraction of the entire zoo for visitors, particularly for the women, with whom the reptile department has always been popular. It was received two days ago and has eaten two rabbits.

Supt. Tretow takes a great deal of pride in this feature of his exhibit and recently has been receiving quite a number of donations of snake specimens. Besides the boa constrictor, which was presented by H. L. Thumen of 56 Congress street, he has received an anaconda, which is of the constrictor family, a garter snake, a house snake and one other variety.

Four of the snakes were contributed by Mr. Thumen, who formerly traveled with a show, and who captured the boa constrictor in Mexico, the house snake being presented to the zoo by James A. Waugh of 1048 Fifth avenue. The zoo has also been presented with a chicken hawk, captured by M. Henrick of Brushton, two pigeon hawks by L. D. Gaslinger of Dobbin, W. Va., and a red fox by Mrs. C. A. Phillips of Meyersdale, Pa.

Superintendent of Parks George W. Burke is making some improvements in Schenley park and in the old Washington square, formerly the Bedford basin, in the Eleventh ward. A retaining wall, which fronts on the Grant boulevard and two other streets, is being built for the extension of the recreation grounds, which is the most popular spot in the hill district for children. The contract is held by Evan Jones and will cost $6,000.

At the Phipps conservatory in Schenley park Mr. Burke is remodeling the palm house to install $2,000 worth of fine palms which were recently purchased. Work will begin this week on the construction of the extension of the Darlington road into Schenley park, a distance of about 1,000 feet. The contract is held by the Howley firm and will cost about $2,500.

Since the ball grounds were completed in McKinley park, it has become the most popular resort on the South Side. There is a game every afternoon and evening on the grounds, but Director Bigelow prohibits any games on Sunday.

The regrading of the Schenley oval, which was begun last fall, is proving an expensive job. The contractor is going over the work again and removing additional rock from the race track. The job is expected to cost over $30,000.

Band music, an aerial act and other amusements entertained several thousand people at Kennywood park yesterday afternoon and last evening. The concerts were given by the Homestead Library band. The aerial exhibition was by the St. Belmos trio, who performed on horizontal bars and trapeze.

At Calhoun park there were the Pupa's Italian band, the Mitchell and Marron two-men minstrel company, the Pryors, novelty artists, and a balloon ascension by "Dare Devil" Nelson. Dannhardt's Second Brigade band played two concerts at Southern park.

The Grand Army band furnished the music at Oakwood, assisted in the entertainment by the Chadwick trio of comedians and Eckel and Warner, the German barons.
